THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXI.

ATLANTA, GA., MONDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 10, 1890.

HATES HARRISON

WHOM HE HELPED INTO THE PRESIDENCY.

Who Went to the Chicago Convention

Way of North Carolina—He Has Had Enough of the Clammy Statesman. WASHINGTON, February 9.-[Special.]-Per haps the worst disappointed republican office seeker in America, is H. C. Hunt, of Ashe ville, N. C. He was an alternate to the Chicago convention, and having moved to North Carolina from Indiana, naturally was a Harrison man.

HE WORKED FOR HARRISON.
He got his delegation in line for Harrison and when elected asked, as a reward for his services, the office of commissioner of railroads. He says that Harrison led him to believe he would get it, and then gave it to another man.

He then made application for various other offices, but was refused all. AND NOW HE IS EMPTY-HANDED. Now he goes back to Asheville to his private ousiness, but says he will stump the state of Indiana in 1892 against the republicans.

"The administration is a farce," he says, "and the way things are now going there will be no republican party in 1892." He has come to the conclusion that the re-

He has come to the conclusion that the re-publican party is a boodle party, and, that an honest man cannot participate in its practical methods and be honest any more. His lan-guage in criticising Harrison was equally denunciatory.

THERE WILL BE ONE REPUBLICAN LESS. "Although the Asheville districts sends a reublican to congress in Mr. Ewart," he said, "It will not do so again. Our party in that district is disgusted with such an administration as Harrison's, and next time we will send a democrat. He will be R. R. Vance, brother to Senator Vance."

THE LOTTERY TRADE. The publication of the details of the bargain by which the republican national committee actually pawned the state of North Dakota to the Louisiana State lettery for money to run the last campaign in the new states, and for Harrison, has created a sensation of the first magnitude here, and has made the opponents of ex-Governor Warmouth's confirmation, as collector of the port of New Orleans, more zealous. Dispatches from North Dakota, con-cerning the fight on the lottery bill, confirms the suspicion that the lottery company is in sisting in the delivery of its pound of flesh, and from New Orleans comes the story that the company is behind the bill to secure a foothold in Dakota. Clarkson and Dudley, Quay's right bowers, who made the deal with the lottery, through Warmouth, are pressing his confirmation with great vigor. They are using the whole power of the administration to fulfill the terms of their contract, both to the lottery and to Warmouth.

WARMOUTH'S RECORD. In the meantime the charges of official and every other kind of corruption are piling up against Warmouth, and in addition there is a large and determined delegation from Louisiana on the ground, who will fight his confirmation to the bitter end.

It is charged that under his infamous rule as governor of Louisiana, in the days of carpetbag rule and the domination of negro legislatures, the treasury was looted and the state plunged into the most reckless extravagance. The lettery company scheme was devised by Warmouth himself, to replenish the exhausted treasury, which he had helped to plunder.

A BRIBE CHARGED.

The men who are fighting him also charge that he received a bribe of one hundred thousand dollars to aid the passage of the Mississippi and Michigan Canal company.

A telegram received from North Dakota tonight says the lottery bill will pass the house tomorrow. The governor is expected to veto it, but it is believed the legislature will pass it over his veto. E. W. B. over his veto.

SOUTHERN WRITERS.

The Prizes Won by Miss DeGraffenreid

and Will Willoughby.

Baltimore, February 9.—In the spring of 1889, Mrs. John Armstrong Chandler (Amelie Rives) contributed a sum of money received by her for some sonnets, to be awarded by the American Economic association as a prize for the best essay on the subject of child labor. Twenty-seven essays from all parts of the country were received. The committee of award decided that owing to the equal merits of the essays of Mr. William Willoughby and Miss M. C. DeGraffenreid, both of Washington, D. C., the prize should be divided equally between them.

Mr. Willoughby is a native of Alexandria, Va.. He was graduated at the Washington High school, received the degree of A. B. in June, 1888, at the John Hopkins university, where he was awarded an "honorary Hopkins scholarship" for three successive years, and is now a resident of Washington.

Miss M. C. DeGraffenreid comes of an old southern family, she herself being a native of Georgia. During the last administration she was appointed, on the recommendation of Jus-tice Lamar of the supreme court, to the de-partment of labor at Washington, and she still

ROUGH TIMES AT SEA. The Ocean Steamships Report a Number of Accidents. NEW YORK, February 9 .- Quite a big fleet of ocean steamships arrived this morning, and nearly every one brought interesting news in relation to stormy times at sea.

The Oronoco had a rough voyage from Bermuda. The Tower Hill, from London, sighted the big ice field that has been reported so often by the other steamers. She had the somewhat novel experience of sailing nearly a whole day over a sea that had scarcely a ripple upon it.

The next day she passed five icebergs.

The Umbria sighted several ice fields and bergs, but had nothing very exciting to report about rough seas. London, February 9 .- The Greek steamer Spyridion Vagleano, from Constantinople, has been wrecked near Falmouth. Eight persons were saved. The captain of the vessel was drowned and thirteen others are missing.

Norfolk, Va., February 9.—The sloop Golden Rule, of Portsmouth, loaded with oys-ters, sunk on the east side of Lynn Haven bay last night, and Captain Andrew Jones was

The Affairs of the Lomax Bank.

New York, February 9.—Mr. Jordan has made the following statement of the Lomax Hill bank tonight. He said the bank would resume business tomorrow. Assets in cash, $56,789; bills discounted and loans, $292,386. Total assets, $349,175. Liabilities—Capital, $100,000; surplus, $6,091; due depositors, $213,083; banks, $30,000. Total liabilities $349,175. This makes the capital of the bank worth 106 on the books. Mr. Jordan said that he would continue its president and that W. H. Mellana, former bank examiner, would be cashier in place of Mr. Nanzandt.

THE MONTANA SENATE. Democratic Senator Brought in by the

HELENA, Mont., February 9 .- Senator Becker, the democratic absentee, arrested at Miles City Friday, was brought into Helena on A DISTINGUISHED INDIANA MAN a special train last night by Sheriff Parker. When Bozeman was reached the democrats had Parker arrested for kidnapping, on a warrant issued by a justice of the peace. Parker did not feel disposed to obey the warrant, but the sheriff who served the warrant was accompanied by a crowd of Bozeman men, who would probably have taken the prisoner away had he resisted. He went to court and easily gave bond for his appearance next week.

A special train was then made up and brought Parker and Becker te Helena. Becker was brought into the senate, which was in session, and the question whether or not he should be fined for contempt was taken under consideration by the committee on privileges and elections. The presence of Becker makes a quorum, and the senate will probably sit all night and pass laws, as it is expected other democratic absentees will be present Monday to block the proceedings.

EMULATING REED'S VILLAINY. During the session the senate passed the eight appropriation bills. Becker, the democratic senator, took mo part in the proceedings, but was counted present by the lieutenant governor, thus making a quorum.

SEVEN BOYS DROWNED.

A Terrible Casaulty in a Mississippi Town. NEW ORLEANS, February 9 .- A sad accident occurred this afternnon in Carrollton. Eight boys, all residents of the upper city, secured two vessels and jumped into them started out to take a ride on the river. Their course led them between two empty coal barges lying at the head of Octavia street. There was a strong current running at the time, and despite their efforts, the yawls were hurled by the current against the barges, causing both boats to upset and seven of the eight unfortunate youth were thrown into the river and drowned. Their names were: FRANK LANDRY, aged seventeen; GEORGE SAMPSON, sixteen; WILLIE WINTERS, sixteen; MARTIN PERRIERE, eighteen; LOUIS G. FALDA, sixteen;

ALVYE FULDA, fifteen; EDDIE KNECHT, thirteen. Wilton Bobby, aged seven, the only occupant of the boat who escaped, saved himself by catching onto one of the overturned boats None of the bodies have so far been recovered

AN ENTIRE FAMILY DROWNED.

The Ice Breaks, and They Sink Into the Water.

Kingston, N. Y., February 9.—The four children of Jacob R. Slater were skating on the lake at Bennewater, about six miles from here this afternoon, when the ice, which was but a few inches thick, gave way, and the little one were precipitated into the water. Their shouts were heard by the members of the family who lived near by, and the father and mother reshed to the rescue. By the time the parents reached the lake the children had disappeared beneath the ice. The mother, frantic with the thought of the children's peril, rushed upon the ice, which gave way be-neath her weight, and she sank below the surface. Mr. Slater then attempted to reach his wife, and he too was drowned. The entire family is wiped out of existence. To-night hundreds of peple are gathered about the lake searching for the bodies. The Damage by the Flood. OREGON CITY, Ore., February 9 .- The water has receded far enough to permit a rough estimate of the damage done here by the flood. While much of the machinery in the mills is covered by sediment carried in by the current, and it is impossible to obtain a correct estimate of the damage, it is thought $125,000 vill cover the loss. BRAME IS IN JAIL

And Will Have to Return to Tennessee for Trial. Омана, Neb., February 9.-[Special.]-William T. Brame, who is wanted for the murder of J. H. Lemon, a passenger conductor on the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Baker's station, Tenn., was arrested at Florence, a small village north of Omaha, last night. He was employed as an ice cutter, and went by the name of John O. Thompson. The murder was committeed on the 11th of September last. Brame was located in Florence by means of decoy letters sent by the chief of detectives, Stewart, of the Louis-ville and Nashville read. Brame confessed to the murder of the conductor, whom he shot because he would not carry him beyond a station to which he had purchased a ticket. He is also supposed to be implicated in the murder of a Tennrssee sheriff named Beu-mont a year ago, and is known to have killed

HURRYING LEGISLATION. The Mississippi Legislature Closing Up Its Work.

Jackson, Miss., February 9.—[Special.]—In view of the calling of a convention, the Mississippi legislature is hurrying to adjournment, and is not doing much law making, except of a local nature. It does not now appear that there is much prospect of solving the peniten-tiary problem. The leasing system is odious to the people of the state, but when it comes to the people of the state, but when it comes to voting money to sustain the convicts on a state farm, the reformers get scared, and hesitate. The house killed the senate penitentiary bill and the matter seems doubtful of solution at this session.

It also seems doubtful if the West memorial proposing the amendment of the fifteenth amendment will be definitely acted upon. The senate memorial asking senators and congressmen to vote against the Blair bill has not been acted upon by the house.

The Champion Jumper.

Nashulte, Tenn., February 9.— [Special.]—A negro attempted to sell a fine set of harness at Patterson & Carmichael's stable, and suspicions being aroused, detectives were informed. They soon got on his track, and chased him through the central portion of the city, He darted into the soap factory on Front street, and as the detectives followed immediately, he ran to the rear and leaped through an open window. This window opened on the, river bluff, and the negro fell a distance of fifty feet, but stuck in the mud near the water's edge and was uninjured. He was captured.

THE NEW RULES.

THE BUSINESS OF THE WEEK BE-FORE CONGRESS.

AN ELECTION CASE TO BE REPORTED

Spoken Upon for at Least a Week Longer—The Schate. WASHINGTON, February 9.—The new code of rules will be the chief subject of interest to come before the house of representatives for ideration this week. It is the intention of the committee on rules to call it up as early as possible, and to ask the America.

house so to limit the debate as that final action PARIS. on the subject may be reached within two or three days. While there are many of the new rules that are obnoxious to the democrats, it is not probable that opposition will be manifested otherwise than by speeches and adverse votes upon them, provided the minority are afforded what they regard as reasonable time for discus-

Probably by the time the rules are disposed of, the committee on elections will have re-ported the contested elections case of Atkinon vs. Pendleton, from West Virginia, and

There are indications that the Blair educa tional bill, which has the right-of-way in the senate, will run through the week and perhaps a longer period before a vote is reached upon it. The author has not yet finished his speech, and a number of senators are ready to follow him with set speeches on the same subject.

The bill, in charge of Senator Platr, to organize a territorial government for Oklahoma, will probably be disposed of in the morning hours, and any odd ends of time therein re-maining will be devoted to miscellaneous

'unobjected' business on the calendar.

In executive sessions the senate, it is expected, will consider the nomination of General Morgan to be commissioner of Indian affais; Dr. Dorchester, to be superintendent of Indian school, and ex-Governor Warmouth to e collector of customs at New Orleans, all of which are subject of controversy.

FORTY-THREE ROUNDS

Fought by a Couple of Fistic Celebrities Near New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, February 9 .- Andy Bowen, ht. who has Meyer, had a fight with skin gloves at Abita Springs today, with Charley Johnson, who claims to be from Minneapolis. There has been bad blood between the men. Johnson was one of the fighters imported by Dennis F. Butler, and was charged by the Bowen party with participating in loading McHale's gloves. Bowen told this man that the fight must be fought, so it was fixed for $100 a side, all the money Johnson could raise, and all the gate receipts. It turned out to be a great fight, lasting three hours and twelve minutes, and would have been going on yet but for the arrival of the train. THE MEN ON THE FIELD. In the first round Bowen rushed his man and knocked him down three times, punishing him severely around the body, but not suffi-cient to knock him out. He was not hurt, but exhausted his vigor in one round, and was not strong enough at any future time to deliver a finishing touch. After the first round Bowen continued to force the fighting, but his plucky leads met with clinchers and Johnson's clever upper cuts in the face.

THE CLOSING UP. This continued until the sixth round, when Bowen cut his eye against a rough stake in a clinch, and had his lip cut in the two following rounds. After that he waited for Johnson to lead, and as the latter could not be coerced or abused into doing it, the fight lasted for forty-three rounds without being finished.

THE BILL WAS DISMISSED.

An Interesting Case Decided in the Tenn

Supreme Court.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., February 9.—[Specia]-The supreme court has decided a case in which it was attempted to hold the state insurance commissioner responsible for losses in insurance companies licensed by him. The style of the case was the state on relation of V. W. Davis, et al, vs Atha Thomas et al, defendant. As state treasurer and ex-officio state insurance commissioner, he issued a license in 1887 to the Northwestern Insurance company, and complainant sustained a loss in the same which he was unable to collect on account of the alleged involvency of the company. The compiainant brought suit to recover of the commissioner and his bondsmen as treasurer. The bondsmen insisted that their liability only held as to acts of Mr. Thomas as treas-urer and not to his acts as insurance commisonly held as to acts of Mr. Thomas as treasurer, and not to his acts as insurance commissioner, and on this the court held they were correct. It was also sought to hold Mr. Thomas personally liable. As to this point the court held that his functions were judicial, and to be personally liable he must have issued the license knowingly and maliciously, but as all charge of corruption has been withdrawn, he could not be held liable. To hold an officer personally liable, it must be shown that in performing said act, he did so corruptly and maliciously. The bill was dismissed.

A CLERGYMAN'S LOVE LETTER. He Wrote it to Another Man's Wife and Got Into Trouble.

RICHMOND, February 9.—During this week there has been much excitement here over the fact that the Rev. J. R. Sturgis, the popular pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, had written a letter to the wife of a member of his congregation. The letter was given by the wife to her husband, and he complained, whereupon the presiding elder suspended Mr. Sturgis. At a reopening of the case the committee decided that, owing to sickness, Mr. Sturgis was not responsible for his utterances made in the letter. They therefore restored him to the ministry. the letter. They therefore restored him to the ministry. This evening the husband of the lady, feeling aggrieved at the action of the committee, made the letter Mr. Sturgis had written to his wife public. It is as follows:

"I hope you will forgive this and destroy it after reading. I know you would forgive it if you could know how sad I have been made, how keenly I have sufferedd within the past few weeks. I do not know what has caused the change in you. I blush with shame to know that I have felt it so deeply, that against what I know to be right care so much for you, so much more than have the right to care.

"Why, from the first time your eyes met mine, I should have felt their attractive power I cannot understand. My saddest thought is I have not acted so as to lead you to Christ. Had I left here the fact of having you out of the church would have been the most bitter thought next to leaving you. In all my life I have never had an experience like this. When I feared you were sick and called, you did not ask me to remain longer nor to come again, and you seemed anxious to hurry the opening of the door and exit therefrom. I could not sleep that night. I have felt just before and since that day I am annoying you. Fosgive me if I have. Forgive me for a love that has grown upon me and horrifies me when I allow myself to think of it as I ought.

going where we met this morning at your time of going for fear of annoying you in that way, but I could not help going this morning in the hope of seeing you. Again I pray you to forgive this and destroy this at once. I know I am wrong, but I have suffered so much."

The husband also published with the letter the following certificate from Mr. Sturgis: "I certify that in my letter to Mrs. —, when I used the words, I have refrained from going where we met this morning at your time of going for fear of annoying you in that way, my explicit and only meaning as to the place of meeting was her husband's store." Mr. Sturgis is reported to be very much debilitated from over-study and nervous exhaustion.

THE MURDERER IN DANGER OF

LYNCHING. THE CRIME FOR WHICH HE IS HELD

The People Excited Over the Fatal Results of the Recent Riot, Threaten to Lynch the Cause of It—He Is Removed.

LEARY, Ga., February 9 .- [Special.]-Polk Newton, the colored man who was to have been hanged two weeks ago, but who obtained a respite, has been hurriedly removed to Al-

The death of two citizens of the county, who were wounded during the riot raised by the negroes on the day fixed for the execution, so enraged the people that they threatened to lynch Newton. To prevent this the prisoner vas removed to a place of safety.

HISTORY OF THE CRIME. The crime for which Polk Newton's life is in peril occurred on the night of the 5th of June, 1889. As is usual, a woman was at the botton of it. Wright Dixon, the negro whom Newton shot and killed, was a turpentine hand, working for Mr. James N. Price, on his farm near Williamsburg. Dixon came from some turpentine farm on the Brunswick and Western railroad, and brought with him a woman with whom he lived as his wife. Newton was also in the employ of Mr. Price, and shortly after Dixon and his alleged wife came to Williamsburg, cast longing eyes on the latter, and paid her considerable attention, which she appeared to relish, and which inflamed her paramour's jealousy to fever heat. About 12 o'clock on the day of the killing, Dixon met Newton, and warned him against paying the woman further attention. They parted, and Newton went off and secured a single-barrelled shotgun which he charged with a heavy load, and avowed his intention of killing Dixon.

THE SHOT FIRED. About dark on the same day the two met again, and the difficulty being renewed, Newton turned loose his fusee with the result that Dixon died in a day or two from the wound inflicted. Newton was immediately taken in custody by a posse of white men, who started with him to the county jail at Morgan, but while crossing Pachitta creek Morgan, but while crossing Pachitta creek Newton sprang from the wagon over the bridge into the creek, followed by several shots in the semi darkness of twilight, and escaped. It was for a long time thought by a number of people that he had been either killed or drowned in his efforts to escape. Deputy Sheriff Davis took no stock in this belief, and about three months before his trial located Newton in Mitchell county, where he was at work on a farm. He piaced a warrant in the hands of Sheriff Barnett, of Raker county, who arrested him and placed him in Mitchell county jail, where Deputy Sheriff Davis secured him and brought him back to Calhoun county for trial.

The Negroes Around Blackshear Discuss ing the Situation. BLACKSHEAR. Ga., February 9 .- [Special] .-Blackshear negroes are taking a lively interest in the race question. They are to hold a massmeeting at the courthouse on the 15th instant to discuss the question. Quite a number of the more intelligent negroes favor emigration to Africa, but the vast majority of them pre-fer to remain where they are. No doubt that they may continue to prey upon the white man's generosity. The position of the majority is pretty well summed up in the reply of an old-time darky to the question, "How would you like to go to Africa?' you like to go to Africa?"

"I aint wanter go, boss; dey aint nutten to eat ober dere 'cept few little squirrels an' 'possum, an' when dey all gone dey eat us."

All the Way From New York to Cordele on Two Dollars.

Cordele, Ga., February 9.—[Special.]—Arthur Alfred Stockwell, thirteen years old, arrived in Cordele from New York city at 12:50 last night, and toolay has been the attraction at the Hotel de Hamilton. Arthur tells a wonderful tale of his travels from New York to Cordele. His own story is as follows:

"My name is Arthur Alfred Stockwell, and my mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fields, live at the corner of Twenty-third and Seventh avenue, New York city. My stepfather was not kind to me, and when I saw the advertisement of a firm in Florida. saw the advertisement of a firm in Florida which proposes to employ boys, I devided to run away and go there. The Sudden Close of a Distinguished Cas

HARMONY GROVE, Ga., February 9.—[Special.]—The death of Colonel J. B. Silman, a prominent citizen and leading lawyer of Jefferson, Ga., in the court house Saturday afternoon, during the trial of a case in which he was interested, was quite a severe blow to his friends. The cause of his death was dropsy of the heart. The deceased was the most promi-nent man in Jackson county, having been elected several times to represent the people in the legislature. He was also elected an alternate delegate to the last democratic presidential convention. He was one of the authors, and at the time of his death, the sole proprie-tor of "Silman and Thompson's Form Book." His name has recently been very prominently suggested as the democratic nominee to succeed Colonel Candler, and he would have made a faithful and fearless representative had he been spared to serve his people agaid.

A DISCRIMINATING DOG. The Rights of Colored People Completely

Ignored. BAINBRIDGE, Ga., February 9.-[Special.]-A new case of discrimination on account of color was exhibited very publicly here a few days ago. It is a case that should invite a congressional investigation, and make your Uncle B. Harrison, et al., howl with rage. The facts are these: Quite a crowd of people was assem-bled on the bank of the river. A number of little boys, white and colored, were amusing themselves by throwing their hats in the stream for a noble Newfoundland dog, belonging to Mr. W. H. Dickinson, to swim after and bring out. The dog swam in, but completely ignored all the hats belonging to the darkies and brought the hats of the whites to the shore, allowing the others to float away, after saiding their scent.

COLONEL FLEMING DEAD.

The Singular Disease Which Carried Off a Well Known Banker. Augusta, Ga., February 9.—[Special.]—Colonel R. A. Fleming, one of Augusta's wealthiest and best known citizens, died about 4 o'clock this morning, aged sixty-five years. Colonel Fleming was senior partner in the banking house of Fleming, Thomas & Co., and his estate is worth about $400,000. He leaves a widow and five children, his oldest son being just of age. Colonel Fleming had a singular career. He never had an ache or pain, but just gradually sunk into helplessness and death. He had no appetite; grew weaker each day, and at last could retain nothing on

FRANKLIN, Ga., February 9.—[Special.]—
Last night the citizens of this place were somewhat disturbed. Yesterday evening the mailcarrier from Carrollton brought the news thatthere were a band of professional robbers on from there to Hoopville and had done the same guard, but they failed to come. We don't

The Political Prospects in Macon-A New Transfer Mail Clerk-Sunday in the City-General Gossip of the Day.

Macon, Ga., February 9.-[Special.]-Last night between 10 and 11 o'clock two negro women found a negro man, named Sam Owens, lying on the sidewalk on College street, near the residence of Mr. H. M. Worthan, in a dying condition. He died within a few moments after being found. He was carried to a neighboring house. Coroner Henderson held an inquest this morning, with Mr. Henry O'Pry as foreman. The verdict was that the deceased came to his death from natural causes. Several years ago Owens was severely hurt, since which time he has been subject to fits, and his death was no doubt caused by this disease.

There is a band of young men residing in and near "Sandy Bottom," in this city, known as the "Night Hawks." In the past they have made some bold attacks on persons who have come under their displasure. Last night while Allen Searcy, a sleeping-car porter on the Georgia Southern road, was standing in his doorway he was struck violently on the head with a rock and a deep gash made. He was knocked down and badly hurt. He charges that the deed was done by the "Night Hawks."

charges that the deed was done by the "Night Hawks."

Political matters at present in Macon are very quiet. Now and then some one ventures to say something about the next race for the legislature. It is generally believed that Messrs. J. L. Hardeman and R. W. Patterson will be candidates for re-election to the house. It is not known whether or not Mr. W. A. Huff will stand for re-election or not. The names of Messrs. A. O. Bacon, C. L. Barlett and Hugh V. Washington are also mentioned in connection with the race for the house. Mr. Bartlett represented this district in the last senate. Mr. Washington is city recorder. He is the youngest man of any of the above named gentlemen. It is Monroe county's time to name the senator by the rotation plan. It is thought here that Messrs. Tom Cabaniss and R. L. Berner will be candidates. There is no stir whatever on the gubernatorial or congressional question.

NEW TRANSFER MAIL CLERK. NEW TRANSFER MAIL CLERK.

Mr. John Rooney, an old railway postal clerk, has been appointed transfer mail agent at the new passenger depot, vice Harry Burns, resigned. Rooney entered upon the discharge of his duties last night. He will make an excellent clerk, and will serve the people satisfactorily, courteously and efficiently. Burns becomes city passenger soliciting agent of the Georgia Southern and Florida road. JOHN FLYNN RETURNS.

John Flynn returned last night from Mr. John Flynn returned last night from New York, where he went several weeks ago to look into the manufacturing of watches, and to secure a competent person to manage such a business and to purchase machinery for the Empire Watch company, which has been organized in Macon with a capital stock of $25,000. The company will meet in a day or two to receive Mr. Flynn's report on the result of his visit north.

SUNDAY IN MACON.

The day has been very quiet, with no exciting incident or very interesting, news item to relieve the monotony. The weather was beautiful, and in consequence all the churches were largely attended. At the First Presbyterian the Rev. Mr. Wardlaw, formerly of Atlanta, preached his first sermon since filling the place of pastor temporarily, during the visit of Rev. W. B. Jennings to the holy land. There was a large congregation to hear Rev. Mr. Wardlaw, and all were greatly pleased with him. At St. Paul's Episcopal church, Rev. Dudley Powers preached the fifth of a series of sermons on the different ethurches, which are practically an attack on all the "meeting houses," and seems to show why Mr. Powers is an Episcopalian, belongs to the "church," and is an historical descendant in regular line of [apostolic succession. Quite A Big Thing.

The Georgia Southern railroad management is much pleased that the powers that be at Washington have ordered that all western mail for Plorida must in the future go over the Georgia Southern road instead of the Central, as has been the case. The Georgia Southern has been selected on account of its being the shortest and quickest route to Florida. This mail matter will amount to several thousand pounds daily.

General Gossip. SUNDAY IN MACON.

MACON, Ga., February 9.—[special.]—Mr. Azel R. Freeman, one of Macon's best known young men, is quite sick with the grip. A large number of Macon's citizens are down with the prevailing malady.

Last night Officers Jenkins and Patterson arrested Dick King, colored, for stealing a signal lamp off of a Central railroad train. King, when arrested, had the lamp in his hand, but had broken the signal out.

Mr. James C. Shaw, of Savannah, the Central railroad's old reliable stand-by, is in the city to-day.

A large party of Maconites will go via the Central road to Mardi Gras. Two through sleepers will run from Macon to New Orleans. Only one fare for the round trip will be charged.

This afternoon a gospel service for railroad men was held at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association. The meeting was conducted by Mr. George C. Jenner, state secretary. Mr. Jenzer takes a special liking for railroad men, as he has been connected with railroad companies for some time.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

The stock law was defeated in Terrill county Thursday last by a vote of 120 to 83. Bullock county is taking active steps in the direction of a fair to be held in the fall.

The Cedartown Citizen offers a premium to the Polk county farmer who kills the heaviest hog this winter. The farmers of Oglethorpe county are taking hold of the movement to hold a fair in that county in the fall.

Cordele is putting on city airs. No more stick and dirt chimneys will be allowed in the magic city of the pines.

The farmers of Houston county are planting corn. The first report of such work comes from J. O. Watson, of Bonaire.

Emanuel county farmers want rain badly.

The present drouth is working a great hardship to the truck growers of that county.

Hancock is going to be best stated.

Hancock is going to have another county fair in the fall, and if she has a poor one it will break her record in such enterprises.

The value of the pine woods of south Georgia, says the Sparta Ishmaelite, will be fully recognized after they have been "boxed" to death. A Macon county farmer says he belongs to the alliance, but finds his chief reliance in two stout arms, a well-tilled soil and keeping out of debt.

Here is a good one. J. H. Shinholser, of Hawkinsville, says the Dispatch is the proud owner of a frying size chicken that is now helping its mother care for a brood of young biddies. When the mother hen went to setting, the little chicken took a position beside her and helped to hatch out the nest of eggs, and is now performing all the duties incum-bent upon a mother hen. bent upon a mother hen.

The supplies best adapted to Georgia farms are those raised by Georgia farmers. They cost less and are equally as good if not better than supplies purchased and shipped from the west.

E. J. Barnes, of Tennille, a few days ago pulled an immense red beet from his garden. It measured two feet in length, was eighteen inches in circumference and weighed fifteen reported.

Interviews with prominent farmers in Houston county show that more hogs have been killed, and more lard made in that county this year than during any year within the past twenty-live.

Dr. H. H. Cary, of LaGrange, will go to the state agricultural convention to be held at Hawkinsville on the 11th and 12th of this month with an invitation for the society to hold its next meeting at LaGrange.

J. L. Dauer, of Eatonton, says that Putnam county made 75,000 pounds of butter last year, and that this year the same county will make 100,000. This statement shows that Putnam doesn't need any alegomatering for healthcare. Jordon Johnson, of Henry county, an indus trious and honest colored man, has bought and paid $1,200 for a farm in three years. He made twenty-five bales of cotton and plenty of corn to do him last year. We congratulate him on his success.

Not a dollar's worth of property sold at sheriff's sale last Tuesday in Montezuma. That speaks well for Macon county, and we are glad to note that such a state of affairs exists. It is bad on the sheriff, but that is all light he can stand it.

right, he can stand it.

The way to pick out a prosperous farmer is to select one who raises something besides cotton to sell. Such a man is E. C. Speer, of Terrill county. He advertises for sale 700 bushels of corn and 12,000 pounds of fodder from his farm in Taylor county.

Last week thirty farmers of Meriwether county sold their cotton, 600 bales, in Bullockville, and carried their money home with them. This looks like the farmers of that county are getting independent, inasmuch as they were able to hold their cotton so late in the season.

The barn burner is abroad in the land, and is conducting an active campaign. P. L. Mathews, of Barnesville, has lost his barn, with fodder, hay and corn, also one horse and four mules. W. O. Wadley, of Bolingbroke, is also a loser in a similar way to the extent of $10,000.

T. R. Johnson, of Oglethorpe county, has farm in Taylor county.

T. R. Johnson, of Oglethorpe county, has still to pick a thirty-acre field of cotton. A few days ago The Constitution referred to new cotton blooms in south Georgia, and now here the attention of the readers of the paper is collect to progress of less years, company is called to a portion of last year's crop yet taken out of the field.

Captain J. R. McCollum, of Coweta county, will plant thirty or forty acres in the new va-riety of long-staple cotton this year. Several bales of this cotton sold in Newnan last fall at 123 and 13 cents, and Captain McCollum proposes to make a thorough test of it. The seed sells at one dollar per bushel.

The vegetable and fruit interests of

The vegetable and fruit interests of Hancock county are getting larger every year. Why isn't Hancock a good county for a canning factory. It looks as if an investment of that character in Sparta would pay well. Producers could get ready cash for their fruits and vegetables and the factory could sell all the goods it could put up at a fine profit.

Farmers living a few miles from Toceoa complain of having their sheep killed by dogs. Several dogs get together, make a raid on the sheep, killing and mangling numbers from different flocks each night. The farmers claim that the dogs are owned in Toccoa; that the

The farmers claim that the dogs are owned in Toccoa; that the owners of the bloody animals, when requested to kill or confine them, decline to do so; moreover, if the sheep owners were to kill the dogs, they say the city authorities would subject them to a heavy fine, and as to sheep raising they are disheartened and discouraged. They claim that the dogs owned in Toccoa have killed $500 worth of sheep belonging to the farmers in the country around. It seems a pity if there is no way to prevent blood-thirsty curs from killing sheep and destroying what else might be a valuable and profitable industry.

what else might be a valuable and profitable industry.

During the past few weeks we have noticed, says the Dalton Citizen, car load upon car load of Kentucky mules going in the direction of Atlanta to be sold to Georgia planters with which to cultivate the soil during the next planting season. It is said, and the statement is doubtless true, that millions of dollars in Georgia money has found its way into the purses of Kentucky drovers for mules and horses. What a sad commentary is this upon the planters of Georgia. If it will—pay the drovers of Kentucky to ship mules and horses to Georgia to sell, and which they have no difficulty in selling readily and at a good profit, would it not be money saved to our farmers if they would raise their own stock, and let Kentucky go elsewhere to sell her surplus mules and horses? It looks this way when it has been demonstrated that better, finer and stronger mules can be raised in Georgia and at less cost than in any other state in the south. To be more independent in this respect, our farmers should hereafter raise their own plowhorses and mules. They will never be as prosperous as they otherwise should be until they do this.

hereafter raise their own plowhorses and mules. They will never be as prosperous as they otherwise should be until they do this.

In talking with the farmers who were in Canton last Tuesday, says the Cherokee Advance, we learned that the wheat and oats that looked so fine and promised so well only a few days ago are now about to be ruined and entirely lost. Captain Paden told us that a little broad-headed white fly, less than a grain of wheat, in the shape of a screech owl, was cutting the wheat down closely around Woodstock. On Mr. Bud Fowler's place, just across the line in Cobb county, he had seen where the fly had completely eaten down about three acres of splendid wheat, seeming to cut it to a perfect line. The red rust, he said, is also doing great damage. From talks with other perfect line. The red rust, he said, is also doing great damage. From talks with other farmers, it appears that the fly is in other parts of the county, but as yet has not crossed the river. However, in the northern part of the county the rust is setting in and fears are entertained that the wheat and oat crop will both be a failure. The cause of both the fly and the rust is thought to be the unusually warm weather for the time of year and all during the fall and winter.

THE CHARGE AGAINST HIM.

Wallace is charged with the killing of a negro named Ranse Gordon, and there is a reward of $300 for his capture. He said he wanted a trial of his case, denied killing Ranse Gordon, and was not guilty of the numerous other petty charges against him. He said he was being persecuted by his enemies. AFRAID OF THE DETECTIVES.

The reward stimulated detectives to effect his capture. He feared they would not try to capture him openly, but would shoot him una-wares. He therefore preferred to remain in jail than to skulk about in mortal dread until court convenes. Jackson, Miss., February 9.—[Special.]— Chief Justice Thomas H. Woods is in a very critical condition, und his recovery is a matter of doubt. His affliction is the rupture of a small blood vessel of the brain. This morning when the servant went to wake him to make a fire, he was in bed and apparently all right. Thirty minutes afterwards he was found on the floor in an insensible condition, and has been speechless since. His family is in Meridian. At 8 o'clock to-night a consultation of Judge Woods's physicians pronounce his condition much improved and are hopeful of his ultimate recovery.

HOW TO PLANT CORN. The Winner of Many Prizes Gives His

REDELL, Tenn., February 7.—Editors Constitution: As it is well known that I took first and second prizes at the Piedmont exposition, last Octo-ber, of $150, on the ear corn exhibited. I receive etc. Now, as I cannot give each individual atten tion, I have concluded to give my mode through your excellent paper:

1. Turn land as early in the fall as possible; let it remain until just time enough to get it in condition to plant. 2. Then run a heavy harrow over, cross break and run harrow; just as you go to plant mark off with a small tongue plow. Cover lightly with a double-tooth harrow so as to form a small ridge over the mask.

3. In about a week harrow the entire surface off lightly, and as soon as it is large enough to off lightly, and as soon as it is large enough to plow use tongue plow as deep as the land is broken, then after that use nothing but double, shovel, gradually rise to the surface so as to avoid breaking the roots. Corn is a plant that gathers its strength from the top soil. It is a mistake to plant deep and keep throwing the dirt to it every time it is worked. I have made corn farming a specialty for thirty years, and when you keep plling the dirt to it when planted in a deep furrow, it causes the top root to decay, and then the corn remains at a standstill until it puts out surface roots enough to enable it to send down another top root.

It is well to get the land in good condition as early as the season will allow planting, as early planting pretty nearly always hits the rain season,

It is well to get the land in good condition as early as the season will allow planting, as early planting pretty nearly always hits the rain season, and is a sure chance of a crop.

Well, now, brother farmers, I have endeavored in my plain, corn field way, to give my mode of corn culture. If any of you have a better mode I will be glad to hear from you. I raise corn that picked ears weigh two and a half pounds, and forty earsishell a bushel. Now, if you want the proof, just call around and I will furnish it.

From the New York Telegram.

For sublime impudence and colossal selfishness one must go to the plains of the far west. A firm of cattle raisers in Utah own 350,000 acres in scattered sections, which they have not teleced in. They seek to prevent others from using 921,000 acres of grazing land in which their own land is included. The remainder is part of the public domain, but they seek to prevent its use because they claim the sheep grazed upon it stray upon their uninclosed lands. This looks like a preposterous proposition that none of this land should be used, or, what is the same thing, that others shall guard their lands from trespass, but they have actually carried their case to the supreme court, which decides against them. It was time to check them before they served notice on the nearest towns to vacate.

Pedro, of Portugal. From the Chicago Herald.

That horrible story concerning Don Pedro and Inez de Castro has been resurrected by a correspondent, and is going the rounds of the press. This Don Pedro was king of Portugal in the fourteenth century, and married Inez secretly before he ascended the throne. His better for regitting become disconvened of the secretly before he ascended the throne. His father, for political reasons, disapproved of the union, and caused the young bride to be murdered. Don Pedro took horrible revenge on the assassins, and when he became king had the bones of Inez exhumed, placed upon a throne, clothed in royal purple, and crowned queen of Portugal! This is a ghastly tale, and were it not so horrible would be ludicrons. Such a proceding would hardly be possible at the present day, but is there much difference between crowning a parcel of bones queen and placing a sickly and squalling babe upon the throne, as the people of Spain have done?

Love, Being Blind, Needs No Light. From the Terre Haute Express.

It is not at all strange that so many homely women get married, if one pauses to reflect that an immense amount of courting is done with the FISHING IN FLORIDA.

How the Lordly Tarpon is Someti To the Sportsman.

Just before sunset we arrived at Blanco and anchored in shore in about four feet of water I have always found that the tarpon bite best in shallow water. Putting on baits I cast them from the sail-boat, using both my rods, intending to fish from the large boat only. Hardly ten minutes had passed, the men were preparing supper when, above the glassy surface not ten yards from the boat, a magnificent tarpon tail appeared immediately over one of my baits. This was followed by a sudden swirl, which almost caused my two men to fall overboard with excitement. Seizing my rod, I pulled off and gave the rapidly-moving fish some thirty feet more of slack, them waiting till my line was taut, I gave a good strike. There was a mighty leap, a fierce shake of the head and whiz went my reel. "Thank heaven, he is hooked!" I gasped. in shallow water. Putting on baits I cast my reel. "Thank heaven, he is hooked!" I gasped.

Getting into the row-boat I followed the leader. Now and then from the sail-boat came encouraging remarks from my excited cook. Supper, I need hardly say, suffered sadly from lack of attention. Meanwhile I was going through the ordinary evolutions of catching a tarpoon, enjoying its exciting rushes and beautiful leaps as they took place under the reddish glow of the fading sunset. Already I had him well tired out and was pulling him in gradually to gaff when I noticed a huge fin some eighty yards off, The fin cut the glassy water like the bow of a steam yacht. The tarpon, becoming aware of this immense the glassy water like the bow of a steam yacht. The tarpon, becoming aware of this immense shark's presence and imbued with new life, shot off in his intense fear. But he was fagged out, and I soon stopped him. The shark, meanwhile, had slowed up and was slowly circling about tarpon and boat, perhaps hesitating between two appetizing dishes. I felt a chill run down my back and my uair seemed to creep, when slowly coming straight up to the boat he passed not three feet underneath, revealing not more than twelve feet of a spotted back. He doubled and prepared to play not more than twelve feet of a spotted back. He doubled and prepared to play the same trick. Feeling that a strike of his tail under the boat might throw one or more of us in the water, I yelled to Joe: "Strike him in the jaw with an oar!" Joe gave him a powerful blow that caused him to swerve aside for a moment, but in an instant, turning on his iide, he made a vicious snap at the oar.

Joe, nothing daunted, was about to hit him again. "Leave him alone!" I cried. "You are only making matters worse. Let us gaff the tarpon and get him in the boat and we will get a revolver." Meanwhile, standing in the bow, my mind was divided between my are only making matters worse. Let us gaft the tarpon and get him in the boat and we will get a revolver." Meanwhile, standing in the bow, my mind was divided between my fear of falling in the water, when the shark might interview me, and losing my tarpon. The tarpon, by the way, all this time had been acting in a most eccentric way, evidently frightened crazy by the presence of this large shark. The latter, however, ceased his attentions to us and begah to circle around the tarpon, who made frantic efforts to get away, while I realizing that it was nip and tuck between the shark and I as to who would get that tarpon, risked all the strength I dared on my line and tried to get the fish within gaffing distance. I had succeeded in getting him within twenty feet of the boat, and seeing him come in belly up; bleeding greatly from the gills, was beginning to flatter myself I had added one more to my record. Suddenly, cleaving the water like lightning, with a fierce rush, the shark made for him. There was a horrible splashing—I saw the tarp on lifted clear of the water, while the spot became blackened with blood. For a moment I was dazed, not to say scared, by the sudden turn matters had taken.

scared, by the sudden turn matters had taken.

Joe, too. was kneeling in the bottom of the boat, his eyes starting out of his head. He finally said, his voice gradually rising into a shriek: "Well, if I ever saw anything like that may I be d—d!" Recovering myself I wound in my line, feeling nothing but a dead weight attached to it. As I pulled, this came to the surface, the water gurgling round and round through it. With a shout of laughter Joe screamed out: "Well, you have got his head, anyhow!" Sure enough, there was the tarpon's head, with shreds of skin hanging from it. But Joe spoke rather too early, for the twisting mass was suddenly seized and dragged beneath, while my line snapped. Throwing the rod down in the boat and, uttering a strange cuss word, I and dragged beneath, while my line snapped. Throwing the rod down in the boat and, uttering a strange cuss word, I seized the ears and rowed silently back to the boat. Here we were accosted by the cook, who had taken in the whole thing from the boat, and was-in a frenzied condition of excitement which almost equaled ours. Supper I found going to chips, but I was too mad even to swear at the cook. The tarpon, so for as I could index would have weighed had even to swear at the cook. The tarpon, so far as I could judge, would have weighed between 120 and 130 pounds, and measured from six feet two inches to six feet four inches in length. The shark was of the species known as "leopard shark" on the coast.

THE VIRGINIAN'S COUSIN.

Several years after the end of the war a once Several years after the child of the wealthy family living in a certain region of Virginia, conceived the idea that they were related to a noble family in England, and opened correspondence with those they believed to be of in England, and opened correspondence with those they believed to be of the same blood. Their letters were promptly answered, and by a comparison of fact and the patching together of fragments of family history, it was proved to the satisfaction of all concerned that they had satisfaction of all concerned that they had sprung from the same strain. In a few years Lord — having determined to visit the United States, concluded to seek out his Virginia cousins and wrote to them informing them of his coming. Although reduced in fortune, and their family servants scattered in distant states by the curiosity aroused by their new-given freedom, the spirit of their ancient and traditional Virginia hospitality had not flickered and died out of their honest breasts. They made haste with spade and hammer and point brush to repair the wastes of time and put their house in order for the noble kinsman out their house in order for the noble kinsman but their house in order for the noble kinsman who was on the way. There remained as servants only two or three of their former slaves, and one of these was old Moses. Mose, as he was better known, had always been a field hand and had never discharged the delicate was better known. In all always been a field hand and had never discharged the delicate duties for old master of passing "the bottle when he was dry," and brushing "away the blue-tail fly." Mose was pressed into service at once and hurriedly drilled and disciplined for his untried task of butler. Time was short and Mose's development in the courtly art was a hot-house growth. At last the awe-inspiring guest arrived. Mose had been given his final instructions and received the last finishing touches of his rapid and enforced education as a house servant. Breakfast was the meal at which he was to put into practice the lessons he had learned. The final and vital injunction, repeated to him for the hundredth time, was that he must not address the distinguished visitor as mister, but as my lord. Mose thought he had learned his lesson well, and smiled with confidence. With occasional stumbling, the dropping of a plate occasional stumbling, the dropping of a plate and the breaking of a glass, Mose went otherand the breaking of a glass, Mose went otherwise successfully through his duties. But his doom was sealed. Returning to the breakfast room with a plate of smoking buckwheat cakes he advanced to the noble guest, but suddenly awestricken by the presence of such greatness and excited by the fear of making a mistake, he was seized with a fit of utter demoralization and yelled at the top of his voice in frightened and piteous tones, "My Gawd, won't you have some cakes?" So complete was his confusion that he dropped plate, cakes and all and fied in terror from the august presence of the majestic apparition from over presence of the majestic apparition from over the sea. Days afterwards Mose crept back to his work, but there had withered in his heart the ambition to be a butler bold and pass the

GEORGIA'S FORESTS.

THE NECESSITY OF PRESERVING THE WOODLANDS.

The Country Fast Becoming a Treeless Waste -The Value of the Timber Supply-|Timely Suggestions.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION:-I thank you grate fully for your noble editorial of December 30th in defense of the forests of Georgia. words of warning, the same paper contained the news of forest fires in southern Georgia, extending for thirty miles and through three counties, ruining many thousand acres of valuable timber and extinguishing the hope of profitable industry in the burned district for this year.

THE FORESTRY ASSOCIATION. When, four years since, I commenced atending the meetings of the forestry associations, it was chiefly to get knowledge about trees to aid me in my park work. On the way to a Florida meeting, I called on the late President Davis who gave me much informa-tion about forestry, but said sadly, that he feared the southern peoople could not be interested in this great work until it was too late. Subsequently both Mr. and Mrs. Davis wrote valuable papers which were afterwards read at our meeting. While in Pensacola I counted over one hun dred square-rigged vessels—ships, in the har-bor loading with pine lumber, chiefly for for-eign parts. The meetings of the forestry congress have always been well attended by many of our most accomplished men and women, at their own cost, who have earnestly labored to awaken a general interest in this most important work. You well know the result. We are apparently about where we commenced, except that some of us have become sufficiently interested to be regarded as cranks. Meanwhile drought and deluge succeed each other with increasing frequency and with more dis-astrous results. Today Mr. Kimball tells me, the cisterns of New Orleans are almost without water, for the want of rain. In your editorial you under-estimate the gravity of the situation. Statistics show that with the present and probable increase of consumption, forest fires, etc., there will be no nerchantable lumber in Georgia in ten years. Suppose you take a ride on any of the railroads leading to tide water, and tell me on your re-turn if a single tree suitable for lumber is visible. I heard the eloquent address of Hon. Carl Schurz before the forestry congress in Philadelphia. Certainly this remaskable man knows what he is talking about when he tells us that with this wanton slaughter by ax and saw, the rapid consumption, the disastrous forest fires. and the neglect of reforesting, this country will, in twenty years, be as treeless as Palestine. I wish every Georgian could have heard that address, and also the ringing words of our own talented Georgian, Hon. S. G. McLendon, of Thomasville, who undoubtedly made the second best speech before the congress. I should like to see it in THE CON STITUTION.

The lumber and turpentine business in Georgia is second to that of cotton. Certainly our societies do not propose to cripple these great industries, which is becoming understood in the northwest where the lumber journals are friendly to our work, and it was pleasant to see our Philadelphia congress two rominent lumber merchants as delegates from Georgia. It is quite as much to the interest of lumber merchants to have their property guarded from forest fires, depredations and reckless destruction as it is for our association to try voluntarily to secure legislation to that

It is generally thought that our denuded lands will recoup in about thirty years. Certainly they will, but what is the product? Did you ever see a sappy "lablally" pine fit for the saw? Dr. Carl Mohe, of Mobile, is considered the most learned man in the country about nine trees. He tells us that it requires from 125 to 150 years of forest growth to perfect a mer-chantable pine tree, which is often sold by the owner at from ten to fifty cents and sawed up

THE EFFECT OF DESTROYING THE FORESTS Many years ago the French Alps were stripped ef their forest growth, consequently the rivers having thin sources in the great mountains of central Europe, were dry in the sum-mer and flooded in the winter, parching up crops in summer and devastating cities and farms in winter. At great cost the government reforested the mountains, built weirs controlling the freshets in winter and regulating the supply of water in summer, so that a section of France it now more fertile and pros perous than ever. This is a lesson which our good friends in Augusta and Columbus would do well to consider. I am proud to know that we have so powerful an ally as THE CONSTI-TUTION.

DESPOILING THE TREES.

A Protest Against the Power Exercised by the Electric Light Company.

ATLANTA, Ga., February 7.—Editors Constitution: In a communication appearing in your issue of the 5th instant, I protested earnestly against the further marring or destruction of the shade trees of Atlanta, in the interest of the electric light company. In some cases to save a slight expense and inconven-ience to the company, shade trees for which ience to the company, shade trees for which singly $500 would not be an over-estimate of value, have been almost entirely ruined by cutting off *swe-third of the main stem of the trees without an effort to avoid it, or allowing the owners of the lots who had planted these trees, and had for twenty years protected and nourished them into a symmetrical and vigorous growth, the courtesy or common fairness of a conference, or even the opportunity of a suggestion that some measure of joint agreement might, if possible, be reached that would save the trees, and at the same time secure the electric light company against any heavy expense. I would not have had the beautiful water oak on the west side of my residence disfigured and almost ruined by cutting off about one-third the main stem for the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, but would, if allowed the alternative, have paid for raising or encasing the wires. Many others have suffered in like manner, by the reckless abuse of a one-sided and ill-considered ordinance. A prominent lawyer and jurist said to me the next morning after the appearance of my article, "the action of the city council in granting to a corporation, having with it a contract of nure money-making, the authority singly $500 would not be an over-estimate of

of my article, "the action of the city council in granting to a corporation, having with it a contract of pure money-making, the authority to mutilate or destroy in its own interests the shade trees of Atlanta, was an outrageous despotism." It was certainly granted without due consideration, and executed in disregard of the equitable rights of property-owners and the general interests of the city.

But I do not believe that the city council had any such purpose in the ordinance. They simply, by a measure not considered all around, made possible in the greed of a money-making enterprise the havoc committed in utter disregard of the æsthetic tastes, the pride, and the equitable rights of others.

equitable rights of others.

Three remedies are here suggested to solve the difficulties of the electric light company without involving the damage and destruction of the shade trees.

1. Let the wires run along the center of the streets after the manner of the electric car 2. Raise the wires by having higher poles.
3. Put them, and all other wires, under-

This latter remedy is one that the city will have to adopt sooner or later, and it can be done now with less expense than many years hence. The sooner, therefore, the better. The network of wires in many parts of the city is now such as to seriously hinder the work of the firemen in extinguishing fires, and may be responsible for a disastrous conflagration involving a loss far greater than the cost of putvolving a loss far greater than the cost of putting the wires underground now. Besides, the lives of the firemen are also in great danger from the breaking of the electric wires by falling timbers or walls or other accident, or from the barning of casement around the wires. These wires thus denuded, coming into contact, directly or through the medium of their fire appliances, or streams of water thrown, in their work of extinguishing fires, or else broken and falling upon firemen and others, may cause the loss of many valuable lives. There is also danger of the wires breaking from the weight of sleet and ice, as has happened in other cities with fatal results.

Let such possible calamities of conflagration and death be averted by prompt and decisive action on the part of the city council.

I suggest a committee consisting of selected councilmen and aldermen, the chief of the fire department, and three citizens be appointed now to take this matter into consideration, so that their conclusion may be submitted to the city council, and if approved by that body, carried into execution this year. Delay is dangerous.
What should be done in this matter should be done after full investigation, with promptness and resolution.

Hallet When She Was a Belle.

From the Epoch.

The Hughes-Hallet controversy revives many reminiscences of the time when Mrs. Hallet—Emily Schomberg—was the most famous society woman of her day. Her beauty was of a striking order, but her manifold accomplishments made her even more distinguished.

Cosmetics were by no means so generally used in those days as now, but so marvellously perfect was Miss Schomberg's complexion tha a whisper went around to the effect that she had been enamelled, a process which frequently defies criticism, although it makes washing or dampening the face difficult.

Knowing this, a party of young people who were the face difficult.

Knowing this, a party of young people who were going to a Seventh regiment ball at Cape May contrived to give Miss Schomberg a seat where the cinders flew freely, that they might decide for themselves whether she was willing to bathe her face before arriving at Cape May.

To the surprise and perhaps discomfiture of some present, Miss Schomberg calmly took out her cologne bottle and generously applied the contents to her brow and cheeks, after which there was no further question in her coterie as to the genuineness of her bloom.

TALMAGE AT HOME.

HE IS WELCOWED BY A GREAT ADDIESS.

And Takes as His Subject: "The House on the Wall," and Preaches and Eloquent and Interesting Sermon.

RIGOULYS, February 9.—(Special.)—The feet. To Powlitt Talmage, D. D., resumed preceding ip Brooklyn this morning, after hydrocome and the presence of the season of the mands the surrender of those two spies. First, Rahab—for that was the name of the lost child—first, Rahab secretes the two spies and gets their pursuers off the track; but after awhile she says to them: "I will make a bargain with you. I will save your lifelf you will save my life, and the life of my father and my mother and my brothers, and my sisters, when the victorious army comes upon the city." O, she had not derer never forgets home. Her heart breaks now as she thinks of how she has maltreated her parents, and she wishes she were back with them again, and she wishes she could get away from her sinful enthrallment; and sometimes she looks up in the face of the midnight, bursting into agonizing tears. No sooner have these two spies promised to save her life, and the life of her father, and mother, and brothers, and sisters, than Rahab takes a scarlet cord and ties it around the body of one of the spies, brings him to the window, and she chambers out—nervous lest she have not strength to hold him—with muscular arms such as women seldom has, she lets him down, had over hand, in safety to the ground. Notbeing exhausted, she ties the cord around the other spy, brings him to the window, and just as successfully lets him down to the ground. Notbeing exhausted, she ties the cord around the other spy, brings him to the window; and when our victorious army comes up, and sees thatscarlet thread the product of sin, across the path to have not into paths of wordiliness, away from God and heaven, alas! alas! There may be geranium and cactus in that family window, and upholstery hovering over it, and childish faces looking out of it, but there is no scarlet thread stretched across the middow; and when our victorious army comes up, and sees that scarlet thread in the window, and sees that scarlet thread in the window; and she cover and the scarlet cord from their bodies and help of the product of sin, across the path to have no consecrated to the cord and trip over him—that is terrific. pleasant day, pretty clear, and not many clouds in the sky. And so I wave them the glory, and I wave them the joy, and I say: "Have you got through with all your troubles?" and their voices answer: "God hath wiped away all tears from our eyes." I say: "Is it as grand up there as you thought it would be?" and the voices answer: "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for those that love him." I say: "Do you have any more struggle for bread?" and they answer: "We hunger no more, we thirst no more." And I say: "Have you been out to the cemetery of the golden city?" and they answer: "There is no death here." A Dying Statesman.

It is useless to conceal the mournful fact that Samuel J. Randall is slowly sinking dying by inches.

The brave heart bears up, and the clear cyes look cheerfully into the anxious faces about him, but the grand face bears the seal of death.

Talk about the will power of Cardinal Richelieu! This man has it, with more than the old Frenchman's courage and integrity back of it.

Sam Randall belongs to the old race of statesmen—the giants of the better days of the republic. More than once he has shown the country that he would rather be right than be president. His career almost leads one to think that some old Roman has stepped out of the pages of Plutarch into our commonplace American life!

When Sam Randall dies we must build him a mighty and massive shaft of granite. Nothing else will so fitly represent him and commemorate his glorious virtues. As the leader of a forlorn hope he was matchless. When he stood between the stricken south and ther enemies he was as a stone wall. When the little men of his party wanted to move him he stood for the right as he understood it, ready to be sacrificed, but as far as ever from the swarm of huekstering politicians below him.

No one misjudges him now. His enemies are silenced. His mistaken friends in late repentance_whisper with bated breath:

"What shall we do without him?"

Does no echo of this reach our stainless knight, as his stout heart flutters, and his stalwart arm falls nerveless by his side? Does he not know as he closes his eyes and goes to pleasant dreams that his countrymen are dreading that fateful flash along the wires that shall announce "Sam Randall lead?"

Buck and the Negroes.

Mr. Harrison is appointing negro postmasters in various parts of Georgin. It is supposed that he is engaged in this business to please Buck, who has been astraddle of the negro party here ever since John E. Bryant, of Skowhegan, was compelled to give up the leadership.

Bryant got into quite a good thing, and there are symptoms that Buck is preparing to follow his example. Buck is a great man, but it is very clear that the negroes will not put up with his rule always. They have some leaders in their own ranks who are ambitious, and while these leaders may feel proud for a while because they have a job of blacking Buck's boots and carrying out his spittoons, they will get tired of it after awhile, and then Buck will be repudinted as Bryant was.

When Bryant fell, he dropped into probably the fattest job that has ever been invented in the United States. He put on a pilgrim's suit and went among the old maids and retired merchants of New England, and took up contributions for the purpose of educating the southern people. He had a paper down here that represented his scheme, and he used to work off a copy once in a while in order to show the old maids and retired merchants that he meant business.

Just how much money Bryant made it is impossible to say, but he undoubtedly made enough, for he has vanished from the southern field, and is no doubt enjoying a well-earned repose. He has left the field open for Buck, and that is where Buck will finally land. It is not an exhausted field by any means. There is money in it. The old maids and retired merchants all believe that the white people of the south ought to be educated, and they are willing to go down into their pockets to carry on the good work.

After awhile Buck will have no more postoffices, or any other offices, to give the negro.
Bill Pledger and Smith Easeley will turn their backs on him, and all the genteel negroes will turn up their noses at him.
Then he can become a missionary of the Bryant stripe, and lay up a good deal of What Public Spirit Will Do.

Atlanta is a smaller city than Boston, but she equals her big sister in pluck, and hopes to equal her in public spirit.

After all, when a city is to be built and kept in the van of progress, the main thing is public spirit.

A writer in Providence, Rhade Island, who is trying to stir up his fellow citizens,

A writer in Providence, Rhade Island, who is trying to stir up his fellow citizens, calls their attention to a few solid Boston facts, showing the public spirit of that historic city.

It seems that Boston started out in the colonial days on a peninsula comprising 783 acres. She gradually added to her territory by encroaching upon the sea and annexing adjoining towns, until she has an area of nearly 24,000 acres. Her admirable railroad system has been projected through public as well as private enterprise. Hills have been leveled and cast into the ocean. Boulevards and parks have been built. Without regard to expense, streets have been widened and extended, cutting through miles of buildings. In five years the city has spent more than $36,000,000 for grading and street work. After the great fire of 1872 more than $6,000,000 was spent on the reorgani zation of the streets. The Back Bay flats were filled, adding many acres and many millions of dollars to the taxable property.

Public spirit is a part of a Bostonian's refigion. The people are all the time thinking of increasing the business, wealth, comfort and beauty of the city. When requests are made for appropriations or donations for the public library, the art museum, new streets and parks, the money comes ungrudgingly in a flood from the public treasury and private purses. From the millionaire down to the bootblack, all re-echo the words of Patrick Henry: "The cause of Boston is the cause of all!"

If Providence takes Boston as her model in matters of public spirit, Atlanta is big enough, or feels big enough, to do the same. In fact, we have already made a splendid start with our system of pulling together. For a city that started up from Sherman's ash-heaps a quarter of a century ago our progress may well deserve even Boston's admiration.

It goes without saying that just at present we have no millions to throw away on embroidery and trimmings, so to speak, but the men who have made Atlanta can always plank down the cash for our real needs. With a vivifying public spirit leavening the entire mass of our population, Atlanta between now and the year 1900—ten years hence—will make strides not dreamed of now. The word "impossible" is not in our dictionary, if we continue to cultivate our public spirit and intensify our habit of pulling together.

The New Labor Movement.

The New Labor Movement.

The Emperor William's proposition for an international labor congress meets with considerable favor, and there is enough dissatisfaction among the workingmen of most European countries to force them into the move-

Whether the movers of the enterprise will attempt to give to the measures of relief that socialistic direction which is the bent of things in Germany cannot be distinctly foreseen, but it is probable that this will be the case.

The object is in general to better the condition of the working classes, and one of the chief means suggested is the general adoption of shorter hours of labor—probably the eight hour system. Australia already has a uniform system of forty-five hours a week, and it is thought the eight-hour bill will pass the house of commons this year. What further means are in view can only be inferred from the policy of the German government toward state socialism, and the growing tendency of public men in the same direction. An experienced politician like Sir Charles Dilke goes so far as to say:

Australia has demonstrated that shortening the hours of labor does not necessarily lessen the amount produced in any case, and whatever may be the outcome of the congress, it will be but one step in the march toward the general socialistic upheaval which I regard as inevitable. In fifty or a hundred years our descendants will look upon the present organization of society very much as we look upon the feudal system of our ancestors. How these changes will come about no one can tell. There are too many unknown factors in the problem, but changes are about to come and are coming.

An upheaval that will bury the individual with his self-reliance and his manhood and leave a world full of grown up children dependent upon the paternal care of the state for everything, is something the most of this generation would not care to see.

The socialists are trying to dispense with the idea that "every tub must stand on its own bottom," but they will not succeed. The German idea of state socialism has not yet gone so far. Over there they try to apply the principle that "God helps those who help themselves," substituting the government for God. On this idea they have established the state insurance department for laboring men.

The idea uppermost in Bismarck's mind seems to be to take care of a citizen as he would take care of a soldier in barracks; to make him comfortable it he can at a small expense and keep him where the government can lay its hand on him.

carrying red of it e repudinto probabeen input on a old maids dand, and

In this socialistic movement the old-fashioned doctrine that, "that government is best which governs least," is being reversed. Bismarck's version of it, interpreted from his policy, is, "That government is wisest which makes the most out of its men." That is on the same principle that a wise husbandman will keep his horses fat. It is a pity, for humanity's sake, that Russia could not take that view, but men in the rest of christendom are too far advanced to be treated like cattle long even if the cattle are kept fat.

The Parliamentary Leader.

Mr. J. C. S. Blackburn, of Kentucky, commenting on the rulings of Mr. Reed, says that if Mr. Randall had been in his seat the fight would have been won without any

Mr. Blackburn is no doubt correct in his conclusions. A great many democrats have abused Mr. Randall because he had the courage of his convictions, as Jefferson and Jackson did, but we have observed that the democrats have always played a losing game in any parliamentary contest where Mr. Randall has been absent. In this particular line he has had no equal and the remarkable compliment paid to him some years ago by Alexander H. Stephens still holds good. On the floor of the house he has never had an equal, and it is very probable, as Mr. Blackburn says, that if he had been in his seat, he would have blocked Speaker Reed's game.

When the republicans several years ago were trying to pass the force bill, it was Mr. Randall, leading a minority, that brought them to a halt. His services in that trying time have been forgotten, or only remembered to be sneered at by men who have neither his ability nor his courage, but when Mr. Randall passes away the democratic party will lose its chief parliamentary leader.

Work Does Not Kill.

Nearly every time that a prominent American dies the newspapers tell us that he was a victim of overwork.

a victim of overwork.

We have had quite enough of this talk.

Worry kills. A fast, rushing life filled with excesses leads to premature death. But, as a rule, work does not kill.

A case in point is Mr. Gladstone. The grand old man has been in active public life from his youth. Yet he has found time to write and print 299 books and pamphlets, to say nothing of his newspaper and magazine articles.

Mr. Gladstone is now in the eighties. He continues to write books. He is an active parliamentary and campaign worker, and is the leader of a great party. A sedentary life has not made him a physical wreck. At his down a big tree occasionally. He is fond of a walk of a dozen miles or so.

This great man does not consider himself a phenomenon. He lives temperately, works methodically, and makes haste slowly. He avoids worry and hurry, and takes proper rest and recreation. If he had started out like one of our young American statesmen, turning night into day, and attempting in the midst of dissipation and excitement to do the work of two well-balanced men, he would have died fifty years ago.

A Gutter Snipe in Court. The Rev. Dr. Ball, of Buffalo, New York, now has a chance to see himself as others

In the presidential campaign of 1884 the doctor publicly attacked Mr. Cleveland's character, and printed a good deal of scandalous stuff about his private life. The respectable newspapers of the country at once jumped on Dr. Ball, and the New York Evening Post said very plainly that he was a guttersnipe.

Now, the doctor is a minister, and a sensitive man. He could not rest under the Post's abusive language. He had the dignity of his cloth, and all that sort of thing, to uphold. So he sued the newspaper for damages. He made a strong fight, and, among other things, alleged that after he had attacked Mr. Cleveland several New York newspaper men held a conference, and in order to lessen the weight of his charges agreed to wage war npon him and several other ministers.

other ministers.

The jury considered all the testimony and returned a verdict of "no cause of action."

Dr. Ball is now in a bad fix. He not only received no damages, but he is left out in the cold with the brand of "guttersnipe" stamped upon him by a jury of his peers.

There is a big moral in this case. Don't slander your opponents. Don't rake up old stories about them without good cause. Don't leave your business to dabble in filth. The verdict in the Ball case shows that when a man does these infamous things the people will turn againtt him and smash him.

urn againtt him and Great was the fall Of Guttersnipe Ball.

THE world's fair in New York seems to have

MR. MEDILL, of Chicago, is of the opinion that Portugal can only be a republic after she sows alfalfa.

CHICAGO has no sort of a showing for the world's fair, but her newspapers keep up a tremendous racket.

MR. EDWARD EGGLESTON says there is not an American author that makes an income out of his books. But what is the American author here for? Doesn't he write books for the fun of it? He should join the noble editor of the Chicago Tribune and go to planting alfalfa.

It is said that the Louisiana lottery company paid out big money to help out Harrison's election. Well, one fakir is bound to aid another fakir.

MRS. LANGTRY has a silver barth-tub, so it is said. It must be a great relief to her. The majority of English people who come over here use American lobster cans. They call them "tinned things," and claim that they make royal barth-tubs.

EDITOR MEDILL, of Chicago, remarks that Margaret Fuller had a royal intellect. This means that she was in favor of broadcasting the south with alfalfa.

EDITOR MEDILL, of the Chicago Tribune, is opposed to international copyright. He seems to take to a steal as naturally as a duck takes to water. Editor Medill's idea is that if the whole country would sow alfalfa broadcast, there would be no need of supporting a native literature. Can Chicago get the world's fair with such a poor creature as this editing one of its prominent newspapers? We should hope not.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

In answer to a boy's question: "Tell me of some trade I can get rich at, and something where the work isn't very hard?" the Detroit Free Press says:

If the boy who starts life with this idea will only persevere in it he wil become a sharper and swindler and gambler, and perhaps a forger or burglar. Looking for something easy has filled the country with tramps and led hundreds of young men into evil paths. The desire to get rich rapidly, and that without much exertion, is the very characteristic that the swindler preys on. When he finds a man who expects to get something for nothing he finds a willing victim. What should a boy look forward to? The young man of eighteen who is so situated that he knows he must earn his own way and create his own fortune, will have to bend more or less to circumstances; but he should think woll and seek advice before taking a decisive step. Has he a natural bent toward any particular trade?

"Speaking of luck," said Senator Vest to a Washington Post writer, "I will tell you a story to which another man in this company can bear witness. One day, while I was in Richmond as a member of the confederate congress, I lost a roll of money, my pay for the month, somewhere in the street on my way from the war office to the hotel. I called a few fellows together and went on what seemed to be a hopeless quest through the dimly lighted and snow-covered streets. The chances were a thousand to one against success; but we hadn't been out fifteen minutes before a young licutemant who was in our party stooped down and picked up the money. We all talked about our friend's good luck—but see how quickly fortune can turn another face. I was in high glee, and wanted to treat. The searching party now went in search of a place of refreshment, but it was after midnight and it was a good while before we found a place open. At length, however, we were piloted to a saloon to which, pending some repairs, access was had from the street only by a ladder of about a dozen rungs. We all climbed up, considering it a lark (I was a good dealyounger in those days), and after having some refreshment climbed out again. Would you believe it? The lucky fellow who had found my money missed his footing, fell, and in that fall of ten or twelve feet broke his neck and was instantly killed."

THE MEMPHIS APPEAL sayt: "It is said of a bright Bohemian who once did his turn on the Memphis press that he lived three years in an elegantly furnished apartiment and never paid a cent of rent because his landlord did not know him by sight and never could catch him at home. But this feat of mysterious economy fades into insignificance in comparison with the story told of George Augustus Sala, the famous London journalist. It has been Mr. Sala's custom for years to keep his residence an absolute secret. He has never permitted even his most intimate friends to know where he lived, and the result of this amiable habit has been at times somewhat exasperating. His mail went to the newspaper office or to the club, and whenever he had a big piece of work on hand which required steady attention he would disappear absolutely from view. Not infrequently the newspaper which was intending to publish the heavy piece of work on which Mr. Sala was engaged would find it necessary to communicate with that gentleman before the completion of the manuscript. All hands in the office would stars out in hansoms and on foot to visit the resorts frequented by the journalist and the liveliest sort of a chase all over London would follow. Sometimes it would be three or four weeks before anybody succeeded in running him to cover. Now that he has married his tyye-writer and settled down, one of the diversions of London journalistic life, usually spoken of as a still bunt for Sala, will-be a thing of the past, ——The Times says that Brunswick's northern mail reaches the city one day behind time. The CONSTITUTION, however, gets there on time, as usual, and in consequence, Brunswick can't get left on the news of the world.

—The citizens of Dawson will hold a meeting Tuesday night, the object of which is to inspire new life into the people of the town, and ascertain if possible, what can be done in the way of establishing a number of enterprises in Dawson.

—The Sparta cotton factory will soon be running again. It will give employment to about one hundred hands. The steam, on the day of the opening, will be turned on by Judge F. L. Little.

—Tuesday la huge bear was discovered about thirty feet high in a syeamore tree in front of the Lumpkin Independent office. A stranger might have inferred that Lumpkin was not yet out of the woods. The 500 pound plantigrade was resting quietly upon a large limb of the tree and no one had the temerity to bring him down with a Winchester, but his owner coaxed him down after a while.

—In moving a lot of hides from the store of Mr. J. T. McGill, of Daweon, Monday morning, Mr. Jesse Goss came upon an army of rats, when he at once exihibted great adeptness as a ratkiller. In the melee that followed, forty-nine lost their lives, besides numerous casualties in the wounded line. Jesse vouches for the statement that numbers of them were as large as squirrels—though he did not say what age squirrels. At any rate, rat ranks are considerably reduced in that nart of town, and their nightly inspections of goods have been diminished.

goods have been diminished.

—Among those influences that are working out the best results, says the Washington Gazette, for the south, is the bureau of immigration established by the state and supported by the Central railroad of Georgia. It has headquarters at Americus and is managed by Hon. W. L. Glessner, a gentleman in every way qualified for his position. The next legislature will be expected to appropriate largely for the purpose of encouraging immigration, and no other legislation could be so desirable as this.

—An Albany man killed the ambition of his which the old man put in his pocket, as he was mghting chickens for keeps.

—The city council of Brunswick has passed an ordinance regulating the sale of liquor in that city so that saloons will only be allowed on three streets, Gray, Oglethrope and Bay. In consequence of this several saloon keepers, whose places of business are on other streets, have joined in a big kick against the council, particularly in view of the fact that the ordinance does not allow these outlawed saloon men to dispose of their stock before closing up, or securing other stands where the traffic will be allowed to go on unmotested. The saloonkeepers who have been shut out by the provisions off the ordinance are going to hold a meeting for the purpose of memorializing the council to give them thirty days in which to sell out or secure other locations, and should nothing satisfactory come out of the memorial, several of them may sue the city for damages.

—Sheriff Beek, of Rabun, has closed the doors of the jail of that county, and gone into the country nine miles from Clayton for the purpose of looking after the affairs of his sheep ranch. There are no prisoners in the jail, and the building is

—A member of a party of young men, under the influence of liquor, while passing the residence of J. H. Crow, in Forsyth, a few days ago, fired at a dog on Mr. Crow's plazza with a pistol, and came very near killing Mr. Crow's little daughter.

—Colonel Goodyear owns the only complete record of Glynn county. When Colonel Goodyear was cierk of the superior court he importuned the county to buy a new safe, upon the ground that the one then in use would not protect the records in case of fire. The officials, however, ignored his suggestion. Subsequently, the courthouse was burned and the records were destroyed. Colonel Goodyear, fortunately, possessed an abstract of the records, and they are going to prove a big bonanza to him in the near future.

—A negro woman, loaded to the muzzle with religious frenzy, was in Calhoun Tuesday, and taking a position on the front steps of Boyd's old store, turned loose her pent-up fervor in a wild, rattling harangue. "O, I'm one o' God's chillun,"
"I'm one o' de 'lected," "I was born before de earth," were some of her ejaculations, but she subsided when Marshal Scott threatened to lock her up.

—Miles Rollins, who was arrested and fined last fall for selling whisky near Toccoa, has been making his home in or near Westminster. The other day a barrel of whisky was found in his possession; he was arrested, his hands tied and he was placed on a wagon and was being carried to to the lockup. On the way they met another wagon; while passing, Rollins sprang to the street, ran round by the side of the other wagon and, partially protected by it from the pistol shots of the officer, he escaped to the woods. At last accounts, he had not been recaptured.

—Captain J. W. McCord, of Butts county, has made from one-half acre of land last year 230 gallons of fine syrup and 500 pounds of excellent sugar. The sugar compares favorably with the New Orleans sugar, though not so bright. He says every farmer in Butts can make all the syrup and sugar needed on his farm at a nominal cost with but little effort.

—W. F. Penniman has been selected to go to Washington, D. C., and assist Congressman Lester in securing a public building for Brunswick.

Ordinary Dart, of Glynn county, nominates Judge Spencer Atkinson, of Brunswick, for congress in that district.

—Indications are that the Houston county

—Indications are that the Houston county political campaign will be exceedingly lively. Already there seems to be a half-dozen or more candidates for the legislature.

—We hear it whispered that the members of the legislature will likely be called together next summer for the purpose of settling the Western and Atlantic railroad question satisfactorily. The acthas already been passed to re-lease the road, but in the event no one wants the road bad enough to give $35,000 a month for it, it then reverts back to the state to be run, and if the state authorities think they can't run it and make money, the legislature will likely meet and tackle it again. Some say to sell it, and we guess they are not far from right.—Elijay Courier.

—Judge James R. Brown, of Cherokee, says the Advance, possesses in a very high degree, the true qualities of a statesman. He is a man of superior ability, honest, true to every trust, one who ought not to be allowed to continue in a self-imposed retirement from public life.

—It is more than likely that Mr. J. T. Venzey.

—It is more than likely that Mr. J. T. Veazey, Warren county's last representative in the legislature, will be re-elected.

—They are commencing to take a lively interest in politics in Richmond county in connection with the legislature. So far, Eb. T. Williams, Martin S. Calvin. W. H. Barrett, Jr., W. H. Fleming and P. A. Stovall are regarded as entries, and it is said Mr. Calvin will enter the race for the speakership.

—The Elberton Star suggests W. H. Mattox, of Elbert county, for governor.

— W. T. Christopher, of the Montezuma Record, forms a mass meeting in Macon county by which to nominate a candidate for the legislature.

to nominate a candidate for the legislature.

—There are tricks in every trade but ours, says the Brunswick Times. Some of the candidates for office in Georgia are scattering circulars and letters over the state printed or written on Farmers' Alliance paper. The scheme is fetching; for just now there are few voters in Georgia who can resist an appeal spread out under such a legend as "Mt. Pisgah Alliance, No. 91,327, Lickskillet, Ga., Office of the President."

—Of the thirty or forty prominent Georgians mentioned as possible candidates for Governor, the Brunswick Times has the honor of naming nearly all of them, and still the good work goes on. Editor Branham's name will soon be added to the list. One good turn deserves another.

—The Cedartown Citizen nominates R. W. Ev-

—The Cedartown Citizen nominates R. W. Everett, of Polk county, for congress, and says:

We have thought for some time of calling the attention of the public to the claims of the Hon. R. W. Everett. For years he has been one of the foremost farmers of our county. His example has been stimulating and inspuring, and we have no doubt but that hundreds of our farming people have bettered their condition by studying and adopting his methods. This gentleman has twice represented our county in the legislature with conspicuous ability and fidelity, and why is it that he cannot now let the people have the benefit of his ability and experience in the halls of congress? If he will suffer his name used, we feel sure that the representatives of democracy in the next convention for the seventh district will be glad to name him as their standard bearer.

—J. J. Kimsey has published a letter in the Canton Advance taking strong grounds in favor of a primary election for congress in the ninth district.

—A meeting of the stockholders in the Pulaski county alhance will be held February 12th, at Hawkinsville. Hon L. F. Livingston, president of the state alliance, and W. L. Peek, president of the state alliance exchange, will attend the meeting, and deliver addresses.

—They are now proposing to run our Jud Clements for governor, says the Cartersville Courant. Is this a trick to get him out of the way of aspirants to his seat in congress.

—Frank Leverett, of Eatonton, is said to be a strong candidate for secretary of state.

—Sid Lewis in the Sparta Ishmaelite, says as all the members of the railroad commission and both of the senators are North Georgia men, maybe Middle Georgia will be allowed a showing when it comes to choosing a governor.

—The Ishmaeiite is satisfied that there isn't a better man in the state for governor than William better man in the state for governor than William J. Northen. The state has no truer man in it, and he is above reproach.

—The Albany News and Advertiser says "Judging from newspaper reports, candidates for gubernatorial honors are becoming so thick that a few quads are necessary to space them out properly. The voters will make several galleys of place octiveen some of the candidates and their chosen one for the position, when the time comes."

—The Americus Republican is publishing the headlines of the Georgia press upon the appointment of Dudley postmaster at that place. It is more than probably that a delegation of citizens of Americus will go to Washington to protest against the appointment.

—Editor Christopher, of the Montezuma Record, insists upon southern Georgia naming the next governor, and wont agree to anything else.

—The Coweta correspondent of the Columbus Enquirer-Sun thinks the congressional race in the

the present incumbent, with Hon. W. Y. Atkinson

—The Whitesburg Advance places at its masthead Sampson W. Harris, for congress, in the fourth district.

The Southward Movement.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

History is filled with instances of races which after dwelling for uncounted centuries in a cold climate have afterward sought sunnier skies and softer atmosphere. The Goths, who conquered and peopled Spain, came from the north of Europe. The Vandals went forth from Scandinavia to Germany, from Germany to France, from France to Spain, and finally across Mediterranean into Africa, where they founded an empire directly beneath the burning rays of an equatorial sum. In our own day a northern race like the English has founded a new nation in Anstralia, which has the climate of Spain, and in a land, where snow is almost unknown save in the mountains, retains all its mental physical energy.

A LITTLE WHILE.

Yet a little while to be Here, while no one cares for me;
Yet a little where to fare,;
Journeying through the darkness drear;
Then the brow no more shall ache;
Then the heart no more shall break;
He who knows and loves me best—
He shall speak and I shall rest.

Do I murmur that the way Lengthens to the gates of Day; Grieving that He cast my lot In a world which loves me not? Do I sorrow or repine? Were his sorrow less than mine? Let the way be rough or dim— Only let it lead to Him?

Yet a little while to be Here, where no one cares for me;
Aching heart and feet that roam
Day by day are nearing home;
Soon the rest 'neath roses given,
And the sleep that wakes in heaven!

ATLANTA IN BRIEF.

THE NEWS OF THE DAY IN CON-

Items of Interest About Atlanta and Atlanta
People-Street Scenes and Gossip
Leaves from Our Notebooks.

Early Strawberries.—The market is well supplied with strawberries. They were so plentiful last week that one gentleman who had a crate sent him and was unable to use them all, was compelled to sell them at twelve and a half cents a box.

He Has Resigned.—Mr. J. L. Mosteiler has decided to resign his position as superintendent of the confederate soldiers home. He has taken the resolution because he is also superintendent of Grant park, and he finds that the park will require all his attention.

The Woman's Industrial Union.—A regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Industrial union-will be held this afternoon at 3:00 at the school house on Ivy street. During the meeting a vote will be taken upon the advisability of selling the present school property.

Funeral of Miss Ella Rogers.—The funeral of Miss Ella Rogers occurred Saturday morning. Miss Rogers's death occurred in Salt Springs Friday, and her parents desired that she should be laid to rest in Oakland, near the old home where she spent so many happy years.

A Pleasant Evening.—Mr. Fred Jewett Cooke and Mr. Henry P. Moore, two of the best known young newspaper men of Atlanta, were elected members of the Capital City club recently, and Saturday evening the club enjoyed a splendid layout in honor of their reception into the club.

Danger of Relapse.—The worst feature about la grippe is the danger of relapse. Persons convalescing are compelled to be very careful about exposing themselves, as a relapse frequently terminates in pneumonia, and death is not unusual in such cases. The relapse is the most dangerous feature of this aggravated form of influenza.

He Had It Bad.—'I decla'r I do wust I could.

'spose of dis wood," moaned an old negro, as he-drove up to a Baltimore block residence. He was the very picture of misery, and the lady askedhim what was the matter. "Mattah, missus? Fo' de Lawd, I's got hit bad. I'm jest sho I'se got disyere grab d'ese all talkin' erbout. I know hit's degrab."

Hunting Fires.—"Papa," said alittle Jones streets boy last evening, "do you know Chief Joyner's

"Yes, what about him?"
"Well, sir, I saw him down on Pryor street looking for fires this evening. I bet you hear the bells
'fore midnight."

Dr. Barrett's Lecture.—The lecture on Russia which will be delivered tonight at the brotherhood rooms, St. Luke's cathedral, is exciting considerable interest. Dr. Barrett delivered the lecture once before in Atlanta, and it has been so highly spoken of for its ability and instructiveness that a large audience will take advantage of the opportunity offered tonight to hear it repeated.

The Dixie Doctor.—The Dixie Doctor, a new periodical under the editorial management of Dr. T. H. Huzza, has begun its literary eareer in Atlanta. Already the new magazine has been received with favor by the medical men in all parts of the state, and if the same standard of literary merit as that displayed in the first number is maintained, its success is assured. Besides Dr. Huzza's able editorial the Dixie Doctor contains a brilliant article by Dr. Henry Battey, of Rome, and a great deal of other interesting matter.

About Newspaper Cuts.—They are good sometimes and they are bad sometimes, but it isn't always the artist's fault. One reason for the lack of resemblance which is occasionally observable is that few men have photographs taken. Ask a man for his photograph and the chances are that he hasn't had one taken in ten years. That was a good one when taken and he wants you to use it;

and—
The artist has to bear the blame. The fact is, the cuts are usually good copies of the photographs from which they are made.

He Came to the Exposition.—"Hello, 's thish the exposish'n groun's?" he said as the patrolman marched him into the stationhouse yesterday afternoon.

"Yes, this is the place."

"Well, 'm glad I foun' it at lasht. Been hunting roun' all day—hic—fur it. Yes, come 'ere 'n purposh to shee th' exposish'n. Whar's th' animals?"

"Here they are. Walk right in," said Dr. Foute' and the door closed with a gleeful clang on the distinguished visitor.

It Will Come Up.—The trouble over the Courtland avenue turnout on the Fuiton County E'ectric line is in a fair way to be adjusted. Several days ago Mr. H. P. Grant secured an injunction retaining the railway company from using a switch in front of his property, because as, he set forth, it was improperly constructed, and was damaging to his property. Yesterday the case, came up for hearing, before Judge Richard H.

company had agreed to removed the side track entirely, and that the work of taking it up would be begun at once.

A Peculiar Railroad Accident.—A veteran rail-

Clark, and an order extending the injunction to next Saturday was granted. Mr. W. R. Brown, attorney for Mr. Grant, said yesterday that the matter was virtually settled. He said that the road employe was describing yesterday, an accident that occurred about a month ago on the East Tennessee road, between McRae and Scotland.

"I never heard of another like it," said he. "Two trains were approaching each other, and about five miles apart as they left the two stations. A construction engine, between the two trains, was trying to make a switch ahead of the north bound train, but met it on a single track about a mile from Scotland. There was a collision. The men on the engine barely had time to reverse the lever and jqmp off before the engine struck the train. The shock started the wild engine back, and the lever was already reversed. The engine then met the other train—another collision. The shock of the second collision reversed the lever again, and the wild engine started back towards the train it had first met. It was only saved from another collision by a few crossties thrown across the track by section hands, who heard the engine coming. So the wild engine was ditched after wrecking two engines. The wrecking engine, strange to say, was but little damaged."

All "Dead Broke."—Three sweet looking girls got on an electric car yesterday bound for West Peachtree street. They sat and giggled pleasantly until the conductor came through the car to collect the fares. Then with equal promptness each of the girls reached for her pures, and the following conversation ensued:

All three at once—"Oh, let me pay."

May—"No, it's my turn; I insist on paying."

Clara—"Girls, it's really my turn to pay, and 1 want to do it."

Fanny—"I proposed riding home; so I think I ought to pay."

Then the three purses were simultaneously opened and the three pretty faces grew searlet. Two cents and a postage stamp was the wealth of the crowd.

Without heeding the offers of financial aid, which came from several gentlemen, the three girls hurried out of the car, and as it rolled away they were standing on the corner explaining to each other how it happened that they were all broke.

Mrs. Cleveland Rebukes Unmannerly Guest From the New York Truth.

During the evolutions of the Palestine drill I observed a nice instance of that kindness of nature for which Mrs. Grover Cleveland is so justly celebrated. The evolutions of the knights were more intricate this year than usual, and this difficulty, added to the slipperiness of the highly polished floor, wrought a series of amusing mishaps in the ranks of the plumed knights. At the tail end of the squadron was a gentleman so exceedingly short and so amazingly corpulent that his appearance was greeted with universal laughter from the boxes. When, however, the little man, now rapidly growing embarrassed by the hilarity he had unwillingly occasioned, toddled past the Vanderbilt box, Mrs. Cleveland leaned forward and clapped her little hands in kindly approval of him. It was direct reproof of the unmannerly conduct of the assembled guests, and after being thus personally complimented by the principal lady of the company, the pigmy knight ended his evolutions amid general applanse.

ATLANTA CITIZENS DISCUSS THE ARTESIAN WELL QUESTION.

CON-

Cards in Which the Points for and Against the Retention of the Well Are Ably Presented

Here are three communications on the water

They are from Jonathan Norcross, J. C. Kimball

From Mr. Norcross.

BOTTORS CONSTITUTION: It may not be amiss for the people of Atlanta to be informed that the six-inch artesian well, about two hundred feet deep, at the new barracks, now yields about fifty constitutions of water new day which the deep, at the new barracks, now yields about fifty thousand gallons of water per day, which has been pronounced perfectly pure and healthy by the war department at Washington.

But Captain Jacobs and the department think it best to have another well to furnish a supply of water in case of accident to the present pumping machinery, or a large number of troops present. To this end he is now boring another well ten (10) inches in diameter, and says it is cheaper to bore a new well than to enlarge an old one, and that it will cost about ten (§10) dollars a foot in the granite. He has full confidence in finding plenty of water of the best quality, and at a cheaper rate than it can otherwise be had. We must suppose that Captain Jacobs and the war department of the United States know as much about artesian as Mr. Jodel Hurt or any other bond or real estate hoker in this or any other part of the country. Sarely their example and experience in such machiners are worthy of consideration by the people of Atlanta?

J. Norcross.

From Mr. J. C. Kimball.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: I have no disposition to mater into a newspaper controversy, upon any subject. Mr. Hurt is a very level-headed gentlemore into a newspaper controversy, upon any subject. Mr. Hurt is a very level-headed gentleman, and ene of Atlanta's most enterprising citizens, but I think his opinion concerning the well is erroneous. I am not a geologist (perhaps Mr. Hurtis) but I have had some experience in drilling wells, and know that a geologist is not needed to determine the exact character and formation of the strata through which the drill passes. An experienced driller can tell to the second when a crevice is struck, if it is not more than one-half inch deep. Can a geologist standing on the surface drilling that the surface Mr. Baum truck many of these crevices, but after passing the water vein at 450 feet, the rock was perfectly solid for nearly six hundred feet. To prove that fact, Mr. Baum put down a casing and shut off all water down to and including this 450 feet vein; and from there down to the main wein the hole was perfectly dry, not one drop of water in it except what was turned in from the top to keep tools cool and to assisn in sand pumping."

Now if Net Hurt's theory is correct, what be-pumping.

"if Mr.I Hurt's theory is correct, what beof all this water which, he says, comes from surface during the many months of g? I do not think that the water in lower and large veins comes from the surface. I think that is quite out of the question. I could give substantial proof to support my opinion, but I will not go into an argument on the subject now.

"I am sure that all the surface water can be state off but even if I am mistaken, would it not be wisdom to spend a few hundred dollars to try the experiment, rather than throw away a fifty thousand dollar investment? If further demonstration of the correctness of my theory is needed I have the evidence to support it.

J. C. KIMBALL.

Frem Mr. Vol Dunning.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Reading the remarks in an interview with Mr. Joel Hurt, published in The Constitution of 8th instant, some recollec-tions come back to me, which bear directly on the position of Mr. Hurt, as well as others who have written in the same vein, when the artesian well has been discussed, and "surface water" appears a part thereof, camefrom the "surface water," we hear of yellow fever all over the west, and Atlansa is so healthy that they come by the hundred-bringing yel low fever, many dying here, having arrived with the disease partially developed, and a great many get well, though they drank "surface water" after they came. Now comes the strange part of the "surface water" theory. As if to test Atlanta's health under these "surface water" conditions, along comes cholera, laying waste North Carolina and Mississippi, the whole of Tennessee and a part of north Georgia, but Atlanta, saturated with "surface water," refuses to take it, though hundreds come here, with the germs of that disease. And as if to try us still further, Savannan in 1876 and Jacksonville laier poured their hundreds into Atlanta and "surface water," though the people are completely and totally saturated with if, does not seen to propagate or perpetuate the disease. On the back yard. The hog pen was in the back yard;

death was lurking in every household. Mothers held their babes with fear and trembling, fathers knew not what to do. "Surface water" from various wells was analyzed, when it was found that we were daily drinking liquid poison, which we continued to do until about 1887 or 1888, when the filters at the waterworks gave relief to those who were alarned, while those who like myself understood the question continued to drink water from the well in the backyard and kept healthy. The very near who are fighting the artesian well declaring the water impure, do not hesitate to drink water from a well in the backyard, although there is greater reason to fear the well water than the artesian. And there is one fact in connection with the outery against the artesian well: The hundreds of private wells in constant use everywhere within the city are subject to every condition which is supposed to contaminate the artesian water, yet they are allowed to be used, and escape condemnation.

The use of the water from private wells or artewhere within the city are subject to every condition which is supposed to contaminate the artesian water, yet they are allowed to be used, and escape condemnation.

The use of the water from private wells or artesian are equally improper, both being subject to the same physical conditions. The persistent, long continued, uninterrupted, well-known, freely admitted and persistently advertised good health of Atlanta could not exist, if all this cry about impure water was true. Otherwise, instead of the sound of the hammar, the buzzing of the saw and the ring of the trowel, an epidemic would have swept the citizens away, and Atlanta would have swept in the citizens away, and the proposed to get rid of surface water by going to the Chattanoochee. Verily, the guanos from a thousand hills flow into it. to say nothing of carcasses of mules, horses, cats and dogs, and whether you like it or not, the people will get a portion of the Juice thereof, though this frince' may not be "surface water." The chemicals now used and to be used in the various mining industries that will spring up, may have a very deleterious effect hereafter, who knows.

Now as to the geology. Colonel Richard Peters, at the begining of the artesian well, remarked that it would be impossible to strike a continues supply in the under-lying formation, but grand old gentlemen that he was, said to me after the well had been struck at about 100 feet deep, "Dunning, you will not strike another ven of water if you dig 25,000 feet further," and when we did strike another ven of water if you dig 25,000 feet further," and when we did strike another ven of water if you dig 25,000 feet

THEY TALK OF WATER ABOUT THE CENTRAL

PRESIDENT E. P. ALEXANDER HAS

Savannah and Western Pushing on Towards Sterling-Hancock County

General Alexander, president of the Central, is quoted in the Savannah News of recent date as saying, in reference to the New York Herald's special concerning the condi-tion of the Central railroad: "No citizen of Savannah who will walk over the Central's wharf property and note the large expendiwhart property and note the large expendi-tures being made, and the scale of improve-ments now under way, will believe any such statements as were telegraphed from Columbus, nor will any one believe them who, riding over the road, will observe the heavy steel rails taking the place of lighter material, the iron bridges supplanting the wooden ones, the rock ballast, and the new equipments being added daily.

"In brief," General Alexander said, "there never has been a day in the history of the Central when either its physical condition or its financial prospects were as good as they are today, nor has there ever been a day when the expenditures for betterments were being made at anything approximating the present scale. The regularly published reports of earnings in-dicate this, showing an increase of expendi-tures for the six months ending December 31, 1889, of $613,308.90 over the corresponding period of the previous year, and $765,476.55 over the same period of 1887.

"Of course," General Alexander added, "there is still a great deal to be done on so large a system, and it requires some time to remodel and equip the property of the Central fully up to the demands of the day; but the policy announced in my last annual report of bringing the physical conditions of the property up to the highest modern standard of efficiency, both as to track equipment and terminals, is being rapidly carried into effect, both on railroad and water lines."

both on railroad and water lines."

Referring to the withdrawal of twelve of the sixty-six trains of the system, General Alexander said that the travel did not justify keeping them on the roads. The country people are now beginning to prepare for putting in their crops, and as a result travel is lightened. Some trains are taken off every year when the Some trains are taken off every year when the

Some trains are taken off every year when the travel is not sufficient to operate them except at a loss; but with the renewal of travel after the crops are gathered the trains, or as many as may be found necessary to accommodate the demand, are again put on the road.

THE CENTRAL'S ACCIDENTS.

As to accidents on the Central's lines, General Alexander said: "The system has had no more than its share of accidents, and by comparison, fewer than most southern roads. No serious accidents, such as have been occurring in the north, have been reported, and only one fatality, the death of a fireman, has resulted. Trains are sometimes out of schedule, and from various causes, but accidents on only one fatality, the death of a fireman, has resulted. Trains are sometimes out of schedule, and from various causes, but accidents on the Central's lines have caused comparatively few delays. These are common to other roads, and he said the train on which he reached Washington going to New York was three hours behind time, and half an hour late on his return to Washington, and he thinks that fully one-half the trains throughout the country are delayed daily for various reasons, and on the very best equipped roads, yet, no one has thought to make a bugbear of it.

When General Alexander assumed executive control of the property of the Central, he said that he informed the management that it would require five years to put it in the highest physical condition, and he is steadily pursuing the policy then outlined, at the same time keeping in view the paying of the dividends, which have not been suspended.

On Towards Sterling.

Trains on the Savannah and Western—that branch which is building towards Sterling, to connect with the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery—are being run to Euphaaphee at present. It is forty miles out to Sterling. The grading has been completed, with the exception of a small cut, and when the trestle over the stream, a few miles beyond Euphauphee, is completed, track-laying will begin. This part of the work is expected to be near enough finished this week so that the work of track-laying may begin early next week. It is estimated that three-fourths to one mile of rails can be laid in a day, and at that rate the Savannah and Western will be completed to Sterling, to connect with the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railroad, inside of three months. On Towards Sterling.

At a meeting held in Sparta a few days ago a committee of three was appointed to confer with Colonel Machen, of the Middle Georgia and Atlantic railroad and see what is needed to secure the running of that road through Sparta and Hancock county. R. H. Lewis, W. J. Northen and T. M. Hunt were made this committee.

T. M. Hunt moved that a committee of three T. M. Hunt moved that a committee of three be appointed to raise $150 to secure the survey of the Union Point and White Plains railroad through Sparta and Hancock county. The motion prevailed, and T. M. Hunt, E. A. Rozier and Lindsay Baker were made this committee.

Complete to Palatka.

The last steel rail on the Georgia Southern and Florida railway, which separated Macon, Ga., and Palatka, Fla., has been laid in its place, and in a few days regular schedule trains will be put on between the two points. Thus is completed the task, undertaken less than two years ago, of building and equipping more than 300 miles of railway. It is conceded by all who have patronized it to be one of the smoothest and best equipped new railroads in the south—and better than many of the old ones.

Wrightsville and Tennille.

Wrightsville and Tennille.

This hustling little road is celebrating the arrival of a brand new engine. It came Wednesday night, and was put in working order Thursday by a machinist from the engine works. It is a 16 by 24 mogul, wood burner and straight stack. A straight-stack wood burner is something new, and there are but few in use.

This engine cost $6,000. It will be used ex-clusively in the freight service, and will facili-tate the road's business considerably. Over a Mile Long.

The longest freight train ever handled on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was brought into Grafton, West Virginia, last week with one engine, in charge of Engineer Mat Frazer, of Keyser. There were ninety-eight freight cars and a caboose, and the train was a few feet over a mile long.

The proper authorities of this railroad will also be duly notified. The New Superintendent.

W. J. Haylow, late of the Central railroad, has been appointed superintendent of the Alabama Midland. He is one of the best all-round railroad men in the south. The Midland will be running schedule trains from this point to Montgomery by the first of March. The business of this road is immense and constantly increasing.

Two real little lords-two children whom every boy and every girl in Atlanta will doubt-less want to see!

They arrived in the city yesterday, and today and tomorrow will hold levees at the opera Two golden-haired midgets, they are sweet and pretty and interesting. and pretty and interesting.

"Ilearned my part in eleven nights," said little Georgie Gooper, a seven-year-old tot who has astonished everybody by her wonderful memory and the sweet naturalness with which she invests the character of Little Lord Fauntleroy, "and Flossie learned it in ten."

"Was it hard work, little one?" "Oh, no. Then I can play the part of the Earl, of Minna, of Dearest, and almost all the others. Come on, Flossie, I'll beat you to the

A scamper, a race, and they were children

Flossie Ethel, a year or so older and considrably taller than little Georgie, is a beautiful child, the very personification of grace. Flossie, though only nine, is an old-timer. She held several highly important positions before coming to "Little Lord Fauntleroy," with which she has been for more than a year now. The other child, Georgie, is new to the stage, but on it possesses all the nonchalance of a veteran.

Flossie's great eyes give her a look of wisdom far beyond her years, but off the stage she is like the smaller one—a child and ever ready for a romp.

"I don't consider this role," she said, after she had settled down for a talk yesterday afternoon, "a very difficult one, but it is long. I learned it easily, however." "Do you like being a lord?" "Oh, yes. I think little Lord Fauntleroy was a splendid little fellow; just the sort of a fellow I'd fall in love with. So when I am acting the part, I make him just as near as I can what I think he should be. You see we actors to be successful have to enter into our parts, and that's what I try to do." "And Georgie, how is it with you?"

"Oh, I'm like Flossie about the part. But next season I'm going to play the Earl," and she laughed merrily at her joke. "What actor that you have ever seen did you like best?" was asked of each. "I—well," began Georgie, "I believe if it wasn't for his nose I'd rather be Roland Reed.

But that nose—"
"Oh, Georgie! You couldn't act man parts," interrupted the other lord.
"I don't see why; don't I act boy parts

"As for me," said Miss Florence, shaking her head wisely, "I'd rather bt Julia Marlowe if it was in the legitimate or Lilian Russell, in opera, or Lotta, or-well, they're so many really good ones that I really couldn't choose. Just now I am all I want to be when I'm Fauntleroy."

That was as much stage talk as it was possible to get out of them at one sitting. They were starting out with Manager Morris and Mr. Charley Howard for a walk and a romp, for Sunday with them is a day of rest and recreation

Several hours were spent in running about over the streets and yards in the suburbs, just as if they never threw off their per-sonalty as every-day American children to put on that of an English lord. The two have learned none of the jealousies so common to their profession, but are the best of friends both on the stage and off of it. Georgie Cooper appears in the role tonight, and at the matinee tomorrow Flossic Ethel will make her bow for the first time in

It is understood that the connecting line is rapidly pushing its work forward and will be ready to handle the business delivered to it by the Savannah and Western in the early summer. Savannah is thus given another direct route to the west, through a portion of the country not before traversed by a railroad. The amount of business that is pouring into Savannah by the line already is very encouraging. MR. HORNADY ORDAINED.

The Baptist Church Secures a Promising Young Clergyman. The Baptist church received a valuable ac quisition yesterday when Mr. Paul Hornady was consecrated by the laying on of hands to oreach the word of God. The solemn service took place vesterday afternoon at the First Baptist church. Nearly all the clergy of the denomination took part in he ceremony and each of them seemed eager to welcome young Mr. Hornady into the service in which they had been enlisted for many years. Dr. Hornady, the young man's father, Rev. J. H. Weaver, Rev. Virgil Norcross,

Rev. Mr. Jameison and Mr. Paul Hornady occupied the platform with Dr. Hawthorne. After the opening hymn had been sung, the Rev. Virgil Norcross made an eloquent prayer after which, Dr. Hawthorne delivered an adlress during which he gave a short sketch of Mr. Paul Hornady's career and told how from his youth up he had been filled with a religious ardor which peculiarly fitted him for the ser vice of the Lord. The charge was delivered by the young The charge was delivered by the young man's father and was in parts extremely touching. He told his son how he should conduct himself in both his public and private ministerial life. He warned him against the daugers which beset a young clergyman's life and begged him at all times to go to the Bible for precepts he would teach, assuring him that if he did so he could never fail to do good.

After the charge, Mr. Hornady was consecrated by the laying on of hands.

About noon yesterday there was an alarm of fire, and the department turned out. The blaze was located in the dwelling owned by W. E. Jones, on the corner of Smith and Rawson streets, and occupied by negroes. This is the old high school building.

The roof of the house was burned and the interior damaged, the less being probably $150. The building was insured in the Atlanta Home. The furniture was all removed.

A DARING DEED.

HOW THE TOWN OF ST. ALBANS WAS

and Capture a Vermont Town—The Banks Sacked—Trial in Canada.

Sketches innumerable, have appeared in newspapers and magazines, on both sides of Mason and Dixon's line, purporting to be "the most daring exploit of the war." I have, however, seen no allusion to, what I claim, was the most daring, viz. the capture of St. Albans, Vermont, by twenty-six confederates in the latter days of December '64, or early in Jannary '65. This audacious episode is so little known in Atlanta, that a brief account by one who was almost (not quite) a part of the capturing force, may not be uninteresting.

In the summer of 1864 about 120 confede ate prisoners of war, who had contrived to escape from different northern prisons made their way to Canada in preference to taking the risk of recapture in the en-deavor to pierce the military lines, and perhaps have to answer the charge, so freely pernaps nave to answer the charge, so freely made against suspicious strangers of being spies. Rock Island, Camp Chase, Camp Douglas, Camp Morton and other prisons of lesser note each furnished its quota of this contingent. Now, such a body of men who had the shrewdness and energy to effect their escape, were not likely to be active in the stirring events which so much concerned them. Consequently a movement was set on foot looking to the liberation of the prisoners on Johnson's island. This ended in the capture and execution of Major Beal at Buffalo, N. Y. Following on the heels of their beloved leader's death, it soon became apparent that Sherman was about to abandon the sword of the soldier for the torch of the incendiary. As the mothers, wives and sisters of these exiled patriots were exposed to insult and pillage, naturally their rage knew no bounds. Said Captain —, of Alabama, to the writer: "There are enough of us here to draw off 10,000 eutthroats from our beloved homes, if we but hang together and strke in been striking us." As a result of mature deliberation like a clap of thunder in a clear sky news flashed over the wires that "a rebel horde had cap-tured St. Albens, Vt." Subsequent events developed the fact that "the horde" consisted of twenty-six men, who quietly entered the town and, throwing off their outer wraps, appeared in the garb of confederate soldiers, armed to the teeth, an enforced an immediate surrender. Although the place contained 5,000 inhabitants, the mayor and city officers counseled submission. The entire male population was corraled in the public square and held for four hours, twenty being detailed as a chain guard around them, while the other six went through the public buildings, both local and federal, and the national banks. Five millions in greenbacks, bonds

the most tender spot, as these vandals have

and securities compensated the captors. On returning to Canada, a demand was made from Vashington for their extradition. The case was taken before a judge in Toronto on a case ws taken before a judge in Toronto on a writ of habeas corpus, and postponed for ten days to enable the prisoners to procure evidence. Now, as much courage and greater shrewdness was necessary to prove these men were soldiers—not mere robbers. Five scouts were immediately dispatched for Richmond, each commissioned on the same errand, so if one or more fell into the hands of the enemy some of them might get through. On the minth night then might get through. On the ninth night one of the couriers returned, and on the tenth one of the counters returned, and on the tenth noming, just before count convened, two thers came in with a certified copy of Lieutenant Young's commission, and certified opies of the enlistment papers of each and every one of the other twenty-five. The trial preceded; the court decided the parties were bligerents, and they were acquitted accordingly.

So strong a pressure, lowever, was brought to bear on the Dominion government that parliament was convened in assion extraordinary, and the alien sedition at passed under government whip and spur. This act may be briefly epitomized as follows: This act may be briefly epitomized as follows:

'The governor general is empowered to suspind the habeas corpus by preclamation in the case of aliens and order them to leave the dominion within forty-eight hours."

But little remains to be told. Although only twenty-six took part in the St. Albans raid there were about one hundred and twenty distributed through the cities of Montreal, Toronto, St. Catherines, and Hamilton. A portion coiceived the idea of going to Europe of fring their services on a blockade runner and gaining entrance to some southern port. This was deemed the most feasible plan, as it wald be madness to attempt returning though the northern states. Well, they found themselves, in course of time, in Edinburgh, Scotland, with all arringements made to man a vessel, prepared for the purpose on the Clyee, about fory miles distant, when news came of Lee's surender and as a consequence they sure surender and as a consequence they sur reflicted their blockade running resolves. Self-ow many of these ex-escaped prisoners are left in twenty-five years? As I write a coincidence presents itself to me—twenty-six men participated in the St. Albans raid, and it is just twenty-six years since it occurred.

I this should catch the eye of any one who way in Canada at that time will be confer with the writer of this through The Constitution.

YEWS RELATING TO THE MEN ON THE DIAMOND.

sting Gossip About the Future of the Game, and the Movements of the Men Who Conduct It.

In the baseball world it is a question, just now, of the survival of the fittest.

Who will win—the brotherhood, the league or the association? That is the question being discussed whereerer baseball is much talked about, and the fight to come this year will be watched with reat interest from all parts of the country.

The successive deaths of the successive but unsuccessful southern leagues pretty effectu-ally killed out the baseball spirit here in the south; but there are still a good many people who take an interest in the national game and in the doings of the various national organi-

Just now all the talk is about the brotherhood's victory over the league. The test was made in the case of John Ward, the president of the brotherhood and last year short stop of the New York league club. An effort was the New York league club. An effort was made by the league managers to prevent Ward's playing with the brotherhood club in New York, but the injunction was denied. The case may come up in another court with a different result, but just now the cry is "first blood for the brotherhood." The league people don't begin to admit they are whipped, but it is probable that this first skirmish will about end the litigation on the subject.

The fight is clearly between the Players' league and the National league, the associa-tion being relegated to the background. Both of these first associations will start out the season under very favorable auspices, and it is now merely a question which is in a position to stand the fight the longest. The brotherhood has clubs in Boston, Buffalo, Brooklyn, Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Pittsburg and Philadelphia. The league will have ten clubs, in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Boston and Washington. In the association there will be clubs from St. Louis, Philadelphia, Louisville, Rochester, Brooklyn, Syracuse, Columbus, Toledo and Detroit.

As said above, the real fight will be between the National League and the Players League. In the most National League towns there will also be a Players League club. Philadelphia gets the worst of the contest in having three

It is going to be a fight to the finish, and it is only a question who can stand it the longest.

The sentiment of the public is undoubtedly with the Players League, but sentiment won't support base ball. It may be depended upon that the league that furnishes the best sport, the one which has the best clubs, and in which are the closest contests, will draw the people that pay the money. It is clearly a survival of the fittest. May the best league win.

Baseball Notes.
Frank Flint, the veteran catcher, has signed with the Chicago club of the Players' league.
The Milwaukee club is negotiating with Martin Sullivan, of last year's Indianapolis team. Samuel Shaw, of last season's Burlington team, has signed with the Baltimore club for the coming

The Chicago team of the Players' league is to start on a tour through the south about the middle of February.

Long John Reilly's batting record of last year develops the peculiar fact that he made 111 base hits in 111 games.

The Columbus club management is negotiating with the Detroit club for the release of Virtue, to take Orr's place at first base.

The New York club, of the Players' league, will probably open the preliminary season in New York with the Cuban Giants as opponents.

Buck Ewing recently received a diamond and gapphire ring, bought from the money subscribed by friends, after the New York team won the championship in 1888.

William Gleason, the well-known St. Louis pro-

William Gleason, the well-known St. Louis professional, is reported as having accepted terms of the Washington club, of the National league, to captain the team and play shortstop.

"Notwithstanding his repeated denials, Stovey has signed with the Boston Brotherhood club," said a well-known sporting man. "He is to receive $6,000 a year, and his contract is for three years."—Exchange.

local nines in Australia.

President Von der Ahe, of the St. Louis club, of the American association, is reported as having said: "I have accumulated nothing in two years but debts. Now I want to get out of the business, and I'll sell the outfit including lease on the park and contracts with fifteen men, among whom are Chamberlain, McCarthy, Stivetts, Fuller, Duffee and con others, for $31,000, $5,000 cash, the purchasers to assume the indebtedness of $26,000.

o assume the indebtedness of $26,000.

When Secretary Harry Sterne, of the Cincinnaticulo of the National league, was asked if the Indianapolis and Washington clubs would be members of the National league next season, he was quoted as saying: "I am unable to answer that question. I confess it looks as though Washington intended to quit. Washington is too quiet to suit me, and if it quits I suppose Indianapolis will also retire. If the hoosier capital stops, I suppose all the hoosier stars will be found with New York. That would make Day and Mutrie's combination very strong."

In reply to a question whether he intended to re-

In reply to a question whether he intended to re-tire at the end of next season big Anson promptly responded: "Well, I guess not. I'm good for fif-teen years, yet, and I'll play that long anyhow— maybe longer." John M. Ward contradicts in most emphatic

The fifth contest between the shooting teams representing the east and west took place at Memphis Friday, before a handful of spectators. The eastern team won by a scere of 188 to 167. The party left for New Orleans last night.

The St. Louis grand jury on Friday indicted Joe Murphy, sporting editor of the Globe-Democrat, who was the referee in a prize-fight that occurred nearly three months ago between two young fellows named Ahern and Jackson, and which realted in Jackson being killed.

Before signing Catcher Keenan, the president of the Cincinnati club insisted that Keenan should not give away score cards at his place of business privileges at the park. Keenan, after he had signed, said that he could have drawn a larger salary had he gone with the Brotherhood, but he preferred to remain with the Cincinnati club.

One by one the league papers are becoming alive to what more independent and impartial papers long ago recognized as a fact. The Boston Herald now says; "The magnates have been slow to 2 mit that the Players' league would show life ough to play its first game, but conviction has ome at last, and while the feeling still prevails in some quarters that the movement is to be shortived, it is conceded that it will have a start."

Talk of the Turf. Spokane is in fine fix at the Lonisville track where he is wintering. In the nature of things he and Proctor Knott will this season fight their battles over again.

Secretary Sass will give his special attention to the accommodation of two-year-olds sent to Clifton to compete for the Early Blossoms stakes, the entries for which closed yesterday.

The champion jockey of 1889, Pike Barnes, left New Orleans for Los Angees, Cal., last week to join the Baldwin stable there. He was accompanied by his valet, Jackson. The famous rider will be missed here. He belongs to the class of jockeys about whom the public never have to stop and inquire if they are "out for the money." Jockey Francis, another of the same kind, returned from a month's holiday early in the week and rode two winners. Skobeloff and Secret.

In the New Jersey legislature at Trenton, on alonday last, Mr. Kalish, of Essex, introduced a bill limiting horse-racing in New Jersey to the period between June I and October I, and confining the sport to thirty days duration on any track. Five per cent of the gross receipts of the gate and pool privileges are to be paid by each association to the state, the money to be distributed by the shall devote it to the encouragement of cattle breeding, The penalty for violation of this law is 3xed at two years' imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

A local scribe, in defending the policy of violent maction pursued by the management of our vinter tracks, declared that no owner, trainer or lockey can be punished on suspicion. Why not? Is there not a strong probability that they never will be punished on any thing else? In what way can the authorities hope to collect positive evidence against them? Was there ever a racing criminal convicted on positive evidence? The tenguilty-men-escape idea is all very well in its way, but this humane bit of properbial jurisprindence says nothing at all about a hundred and tenguilty men escaping! There should be some limit even to our humanity.—Sportsman.

With the Pugilists.

With the Fuglissts.

The Pelican club have organized a syndicate and agreed to put up a purse of 5,000 pounds for a battle between John L. Sullivan and Slavin, and allow the men to agree where the battle shall be fought. The Marquis of Queensberry and Lord Lonsdale are at the head of the syndicate. It is doubtful if any match will come out of the offer.

are at the head of the syndicate. It is doubtful if any match will come out of the offer.

Many believe that Jackson would defeat Sullivan, especially Charles E. Davies, the colored heavy-weight champlon's shrewd manager, and there is not the least doubt that if the match were ratified there would be hundreds, especially on the Pacific coast, who would accept odds on Jackson's chances of winning, while a number of sporting men would back Sullivan.

Should the California Athletic club succeed in inducing Sullivan to go to San Francisco to meet Jackson, and should Sullivan settle down to hard work and train, his chances of defeating Jackson should be very rosy, but if he follows the footsteps of many of the o'd champlons and those who have flourished during the past few years, and believe that his opponent is overrated and not in class, and piace too much confidence in his own ability to win without training, instead of victory he might meet with defeat. Jackson, so far, has not met the three star pugilists, Sullivan, Kilrain and Slavin, and his victories have been over men not Sullivan's Kilrain's or Slavin's equals in a fictic way. Consequently Sullivan in condition should conquer Jackson.

KIRALFY'S LAGARDERE.

The greatest spectacular performance ever witnessed in Atlanta will be given by Inne Kiralfy's great Lagardere company next Wednesday. For scenic grandeur, (two carloads of scenery) for gorgeousness of costumes and beauty of ballets, it will surpass anything yet seen here, and the glorious pageant will deserve to be seen for its brilliancy alone. "Lagardere," or the "Bossee of Paris," is a very interesting play in itself, and Parls," is a very interesting play in itself, and that interest doubles the attraction of the performance. The New York World said of it:

"Lagardere" entered its seventh week last night of its successful run at Niblo's, and on Wednesday evening the fiftieth performance will be celebrated. In the production of the play the management has echipsed the splendor of his former spectacular productions. This is especially true of the scenery, which, striking in picturesque effect, is exceptionally artistic in treatment, both in design and detailed finish. The new costumes, new throughout, are rich and attractive, and, what is more pleasing to the public, there is unusual profusion of feminine loveliness in the ballet corps.

"Daniel Boone."

No truly American heart can fail to feel a deep

No truly American heart can fail to feel a deep interest in everything which relates to the life of the heroic pioneer of Kentucky, and this explains the great popular success of the play which will be presented in Atlanta next Friday. The Albany, the great popular success of the play which wall be presented in Atlanta next Friday. The Albany, N. Y., Argus said of it:

"An andience that packed the operahouse from pit to dome witnessed the production, for the first time in this city, of Charles Gayler's romantic border drama, entitled, "On the Trail; or, Dauiel Boone, the Pioneer." To say they went home satisfied would be expressing it in modest terms. The company was first-class in every particular, and the piece was mounted in a manner never before witnessed in our theater. The introduction of the trained horses and wild animals was a special feature, and the entire absence of "blood and thunder" qualities was both agreeable and surprising. The Indian encampment, including genuine Indians in their war dances, held the audience spelbound.

Messrs. Peck & Fursman deserve great credit for the care and attention they have given in placing this entertainment before the public, and we are sure they will receive a liberal reward from the army of amusement lovers wherever they go. It is certain that they will always be welcome here."

MR. JONES'S FUNERAL.

MR. JONES'S FUNERAL. Last Rites Paid to Georgia's Farmer Statesman. The funeral of Hon. Primus W. Jones occurred at the residence of his brother, Dr. Chan Jones, No. 384 Peachtree street, yestcrday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. McDonald officiated and the cere-monies were most beautifully conducted. The noble life and manly character of the dead farmer statesman were portrayed in touching words, and his death characterized as a public misfortune.

There were a large number of his relatives and intimate friends present and a long concourse followed the remains to their last rest-ing place in Oakland cemetery. The pall bearers were selected from among those whom he held in highest esteem while in life. They were: Messrs. Willis Ragan, P. L. Mynatt, Frank M. Potts, H. IH. Fudge, W. H. Venab'e, Clark Howell, Jr., James O'Neill, Frank P. Rice, Robert Hardeman, Joseph Kingsberry and W. A. Hemphill.

Messrs. Venable, O'Neill, Howell and Rice served with Mr. Jones in the last legislature, and were his comrades in many a legislative There is sorrow on the plantation today where he ruled with a generous hand and was the moving spirit among those who looked up to him with love, respect and admiration. Hts energetic nature was so tempered with affable geniality that he was leader and comrade at one and the same time.

His death in the very prime of his days will be mourned all over the state as a public calamity.

INSPECTING THE LINES.

The Fulton County Street Railway Company's Work.

A committee, consisting of Mr. John R. Gramling, Hon. Frank P. Rice and Mr. T. M. Clarke, are examining the lines of the Fulton County Street railway system, as a committee from the stockholders, with a view to taking charge of the road, provided it is completed in compliance with the terms of the contract.

The Thomson-Houston company had the contract for constructing the lines, and so far the committee has found the lines well con-structed and in excellent condition, with the exception of a few rough places. When the committee's work is complete, a report of the condition of the road will be made back to the stockholders, and if favorable the back to the stockholders, and if favorable the system will be turned over to them and they will assume charge of the property.

It has been learned that the company has in contemplation the construction of a number of branch lines, penetrating various portions of the city, and the big scheme of a power plant, located at Berkeley, to furnish power to all sorts of manufacturing industries in and about the city, has been talked of the city, has been talked of.

So far the road has done a handsome business, and regular schedules have been run on the entire circuit. Sundays, when the weather is fine, the travel in the suburbs is immense, and the cars are crowded.

SENT TO THE ASYLUM.

A Divorce Suit With an Interesting Story.

Martin J. Dooley, formerly city bill-poster, has filed a cross bill in the divorce suit brought against him some time ago by his wife, Mrs. S. C. Dooley,

In the bill he recites that he was married twice, once by the Episcopal and once by the Catholic rites. He avers that he always treated his wife kindly, and, on the contrary treated his wife kindly, and, on the contrary to her statement, she was cruel toward him.

He further charges that his wife led him on to drinking, and finally had him sent to the insane asylum in order to get possession of his money and business.

Through an attorney he secured his release from the asylum, as he says, totally cured of his former appetite for drink. He endeavored to become reconciled to his wife, but she only persisted in maligning his character.

He avers that while he was in the asylum his wife invested all his savings in real estate in her own name, and that her avowed object in marrying him was to secure a home and control of all his property. When this was accomplished she had no further use for him, and therefore he asked the court to totally divorce him from his said wife.

After diphtheria, scarlet fever, or pneumo nia, Hood's Sarsaparilla will give strength to the system, and expel all poison from the blood. For disordered liver try Beecham's Pills.

If the sermon was concluded by an appeal to the congregation to get down from the black horse of their particular sin and come while there was yet time to the foot of the cross.

After he ceased preaching Mr. Jones begged that none of the audience would leave the church until the benediction was given. He then said he was in need of money to meet the expenses of his family, which amounted all told to sixty people, which, he explained, included the orphans and others he supported. He sent gentlemen through the aisles to collect confributions, and a good round sum was realized.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS

REV. SAM JONES PREACHED TWICE YESTERDAY.

The Usual Throngs Gather to Hear Him, and He Takes Up Collections for the Orphans He Supports.

Rev. Sam Jones attracted an immense crowd yesterday.

In the morning he preached at the First Methodist church, and as usual when the Rev. Sam preaches it was impossible to get inside the building.

In the evening the same crush was re-peated at Trinity church. Long before the hour of service every seat was occupied, and as the people continued to flock in chairs were placed down the aisles for the ladies. The men leaned themselves up against the walls of the edifice and tried to look comfortable.

Mr. Jones preached in his usual style. He leaned over the reading desk and pointed his finger at members of the audience in order to enforce his remarks, and occasionally he brought the toe of his boot down with astonishing force on the flooring of the platform. He told a number of good stories, which excited much laughter. The principal part of the hour and a quarter's discourse was devoted to proving the love of wealth when allowed to interfere with religious observances was a damnable sin. He also claimed that wealth so acquired never gave happiness. "I sat," said Mr. Jones, "a year ago in the house of the richest man in Atlanta, and told him of my orphans home. He got deeply interested in the work, and told me I was on the right road. The tears were running down his cheeks, and when I got through talking, said he, 'I feel that much interest in Atlanta that if I' could afford it I'd give you a hundred dollars.' That was the richest man in Atlanta, and he felt poorer with all his money than many a man with next to nothing who still felt that out of his little he could spare enough to help along the good work." In another part of his sermon Mr. Jones told them he recently stayed with friends in Washington. He described his friend's house as having cost a million dollars, and the furniture, he said, cost another $100,000. After the dinner, he told how one after the other of the sons of the house got up and went in search of their amusements, and later, how the young ladies went to prepare themselves to devote the night to the requirements of fashionable life. When he left that house Mr. Jones said he thought it was occupied by one of the most unhappy families he had ever known. On the other hand, he drew a word picture of a poor man's home, where the father strived to rear his children in the right way, and where there was peace, love of God, and happiness.

The Louisiana Lottery came in for a big share of Mr. Jones's denunciation. He stig-matized it as a "damnably outrageous institution," and told several stories to show how much evil had been wrought by it. Among them was one of a woman who got religion at a meeting he recently held in New Orleans, and when she went home she told her husand that she meant to lead a different life and to begin she felt it her duty to confess to him that the money saved from his earnings which he had confided to her to purchase a home had all been lost in the lottery. He also described the husband's anger at the in-ferencies.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher, and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas. ng Point, Texas.
